HUGHEY JENNINGS TO MANAGE BRAVES

MITCHELL SLATED TO GO

Former Leader of Detroit Tigers Is Now McGraw's Assistant With Giants

Hughey Jennings will replace Fred Mitchell as manager of the Braves. That's the sure fire tip that has been passed on to baseball's inner circles.

It has not been any secret for several weeks that Mitchell was slated to go as pilot of the Tribe. The Braves have not shown to good advantage this season and it is said that the powers that control the local club have decided a change of managerse might help matters.

Jennings is assistant manager of the New York Giants. He is in charge when McGraw is away from the team. Jennings was formerly manager of the Detroit Tigers.

ALL WELCOME AT MOTHERS' OUTING

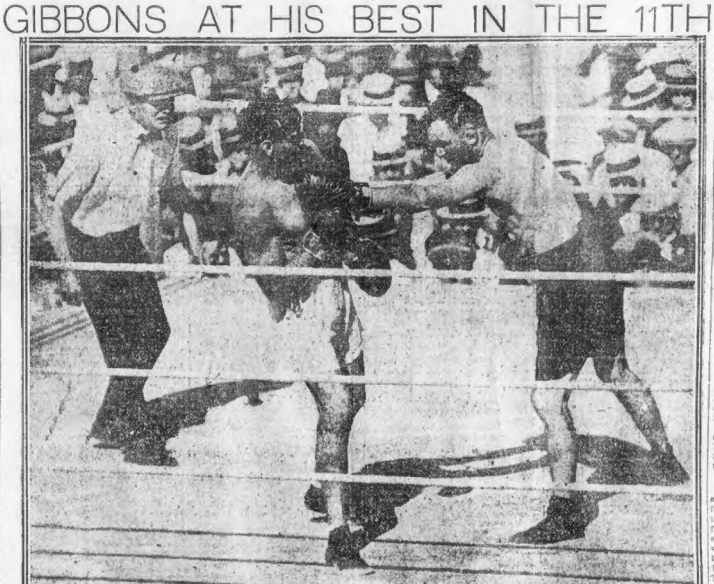
GIBBONS AT HIS BEST IN THE 11TH



GIBBONS LANDS A HARD BLOW IN THE ELEVENTH

Gibbons lands one. The St. Paul battler landing a hard left swing on Dempsey's body in the eleventh round. This was one of the three rounds in which Gibbons was credited with having an advantage. That Dempsey felt the blow is evident from the expression on his face as he was shoved back on his heel.

WORLD TENNIS TITLE WON BY JOHNSTON

Wimbledon, July 7 (AP).—William M. Johnston, No. 2 in the American lawn tennis ranking, is the new world's champion on grass courts. The diminutive San Franciscan defeated Francis T. Hunter of New Rochelle, N. Y., ninth ranking American in the final of the Wimbledon tournament today, 6—0, 6—3, 6—1.

Hunter was unable to advance to the net in the face of Johnston's bewildering crossfire. He was kept constantly on the run in attempts to retrieve little Bill's deep-placed dives.

BIG LIQUOR HAUL IN SO. END RAID

Police late today made one of the biggest liquor raids in Boston since prohibition. They entered a tenement block at 15 East Springfield street, South End, and seized the following:

A huge tank imbedded in the building wall, containing alcohol artificially colored as "whiskey."

Pipe which emptied the tank through a gas cock spout in the cellar.

35 five-gallon cans of alcohol.

20 one-gallon tanks of the same.

100 pints of "whiskey."

150 half-pints of "whiskey."

Applications were made for the arrest of two persons.

More than 1,000 persons witnessed the raid. A physician stopped in his automobile to congratulate the raiding officers. They waited for three hours before they entered the building, in the meantime a large consignment of "stuff" having been delivered.

The building is of four stories with a store in front. It was in the store business was carried on.

FRIEDMAN-VILLA TITLE BOUT HERE

Abe Friedman of Boston was matched today to meet Pancho Villa for the flyweight championship of the world. The bout will be staged at Mechanics building by the Commercial club on July 20.

MANY KILLED IN BERLIN TRAIN CRASH

London, July 7 (A.P.).—Many persons were killed and 50 were seriously injured in a train collision in the centre of Berlin today, says a Central News dispatch from the German capital.

RECOVER LENSES STOLEN FROM AUTO

Inspector Peter J. Tracy of the Waltham police discovered today a number of photographic lenses and supplies, valued at $400, beneath a newsstand on Fenton street. The package had been stolen from an automobile owned by Perry Cloud, No. 9 Ardmore road, West Newton, which had been parked in front of the Boston & Maine railroad station.

A. F. OF L. TAKES CHARGE OF N. E. TELEPHONE GIRLS' STRIKE

'WILL WIN' DECLARE LEADERS

STRIKE BULLETINS

Providence, July 7.—Mayor Galvor today announced that he will attend a conference of municipal executives at Worcester, on Wednesday, to discuss the telephone strike situation. No new developments here are reported. The telephone company is replacing strikers with new and partly trained operatives.

A tie-up of unionized branches of the telephone industry is the plan whereby the striking operators hope to win their walkout.

This became known today when the American Federation of Labor, through its president, Samuel Gompers, came off the fence and definitely lined up with the strikers.

The American Federation of Labor will not only support the strike in every possible way, but will direct it, from today on.

Fortified by the assurance of support and direction of the Federation, and by the pledge of the Boston Central Labor Bureau to supply $50,000 as a strike fund, the striking operators are jubilant and allege that as the days go on the conduct of the strike from their point of view will become more and more efficient.

They point to the fact that all five members of the seceding spliicers' union have come back into the fold, that the linemen are to hold a meeting next week to consider strike action, and other actions and plans they regard as significant.

For more than two hours today the strikers cheered Miss O'Connor, their president, Jeremiah Hodgdon, their legislative agent, and various other speakers at strike rally in Tremont Temple. Reports from Framingham and Natick, where only one operator is at work in each town, and Milford, where only four are at work, were received with shouts of enthusiasm.

On the other hand, the telephone company today issued this report:

COMPANY'S STATEMENT.

"The report of force conditions at 9 o'clock this morning shows all exchanges in the central district of Boston with a full normal quota.

"Outside of Boston the situation was substantially the same as that reported for yesterday morning, with new recruits added at a number of points.

"In the Rhode Island Division 45 new operators were added. This brings the total of today's force in the Rhode Island Division to within 35 of its normal quota.

"Springfield gained 10 new operators; Worcester, 16; Brockton gained 3; Attleboro, 2; Stoughton, 1; Lynn gained 8.

"Salem reported the return of 5 of the operators who went on strike, Whitman, 4; Arlington, 2, while Milton reported a loss of 1."

MAYORS MEET WEDNESDAY.

Julia S. O'Connor, head of the strikers, insists that the ranks of the "loyal" operators are being daily depleted, and that it is only a question of days before they will be made to feel the pressure of the A. F. of L. support and go out in a body.

Mayor Peter F. Sullivan of Worcester announced today that his proposed conference of Mayors of cities where telephone service has been interrupted would be held at Worcester next Wednesday. Mayors Mahoney of Lawrence and Gainer of Providence have wired acceptance of Mayor Sullivan's invitation and the hope that some constructive program can be adopted at the conference.

Tomorrow afternoon on the Common at Lawrence, Miss O'Connor will address a mass meeting. She will speak also in Framingham tomorrow.

Practically all the operators in the exchange at Lawrence are new girls. Manager Fred G. Cheney of the Lawrence branch states that the girls were promised when they took the positions that they would be permanent. Full service is being maintained in Lawrence until 5 o'clock, but after that only emergency calls are allowed.

ACCUSE SPRINGFIELD MAYOR.

At Springfield officers of the Central Labor Union asked legal advice today to find a way to prevent the police from keeping the street roped off in front of the local telephone exchange. They contend that Mayor Edwin F. Leonard has

HAPPY THRONG OF AMERICAN'S GUESTS

Next Tuesday, the first of the Mothers' and Children's outings, so popular last year, will be held. In insert: Frank N. Archer, Mexie's Daddy, (Photo by Purdy) who has generously provided a free treat for the kiddies.

JEALOUS WIFE SLAYS RIVAL IN LOVE

Chicago, July 7 (I.N.S.).—In full view of a score of persons, Mrs. Minnie Bernatowske, 28, mother of four children, early today shot and killed Mrs. Annie Andraski and, according to police, declared she fired because Mrs. Andraski had stolen her husband's love.

Mrs. Bernatowske was accompanied by her 13-year-old son and Mrs. Andraski was accompanied by her 27-year-old son. Mrs. Andraski was shot down as she passed a corner on her way to her store.

At the police station Mrs. Bernatowske said that her husband left her several months ago after having become infatuated with Mrs. Andraski five years ago.

"I warned her I would kill her," she was quoted to have told police. "She only sneered at me. I'm glad the homewrecker is dead. I am happy."

STRIKERS, HIT BY TAXI, RECOVERING

Ethel Hennessey

The striking telephone operators, picketing the Lynn telephone Exchange on Oxford street, Lynn, who were struck and injured by a taxicab containing loyal operators, are recovering at their homes. The injured were Mrs. Ethel Hennessey, of No. 14 Acorn street, Lynn, and Miss Helen Hodgood, of No. 102 Lafayette Park, Lynn. The taxi, which was operated by John Ray, was taking a load of operators home from work.

CAPT. MORRISON HURT IN BROCKTON CRASH

Brockton, July 7.—Captain Allen C. Morrison, formerly an officer in the State Guard, was seriously injured in an automobile accident here early today. His car collided with an automobile owned and driven by David M. Phillips of North Abington and then ran into a telephone pole. Albert Canham and his daughter, Ethel, were slightly injured.

Phillips was arrested on a charge of violating the state law permitting peaceful picketing.

A parade was staged today in Springfield by 270 operators on strike, headed by a band furnished by the Machinists' Union, and with police escort. The parade was applauded by a large crowd.

Summons were issued for two strikers charged with intimidation.

Revere Phone Striker Charged With Assault

Nellie Hauman, 20 years old, a striking telephone operator formerly employed at the Revere exchange, will appear in Chelsea Court Monday morning on a charge of assault and battery upon Ella Vesels, 21, of 200 Malden street, Revere, and Mildred Dorkery, 20, of 76 North avenue, Revere, both "loyal" operators employed in the Revere office.

Revere police say that the alleged assault upon the two girls occurred Friday evening after the girls left their automobile. Miss Hauman, so the police assert, was one of a group of strikers picketing the telephone office.

TICKETS READY FOR OUTING AT NANTASKET

can readers only, but welcomes all women and children up to fifteen years of age within the limits of the Greater City.

All preparations for the two sailings at 9:00 and 9:30 a. m. on Tuesday morning have been made; thousands of bottles of milk, thousands of helpings of ice cream, thousands of generous portions of cake and other good things are stored up ready for delivery to the boats or direct to Nantasket Beach by a big fleet of trucks.

The return trip tickets which you will receive at the Exchange Stations listed in return for the three coupons of three separate days' issue of the Boston American will be plainly marked with the hour and date of sailing. EXAMINE YOUR TICKETS CAREFULLY—MAKE CERTAIN THAT ALL MEMBERS OF YOUR PARTY WHO DESIRE TO TRAVEL TOGETHER HAVE TICKETS OF THE SAME DATE AND HOUR OF SAILING. Where so many thousands of people are handled within a limited time it is physically impossible to make any changes at Rowe's wharf.

PHONE IF IN DOUBT.

The Boston American invites any persons who expect to take the Mothers' and Children's Trip to ring up this newspaper if there is any doubt in their mind regarding details. Call "Main 2180, Promotion Department."

REGARDING THE WEATHER: As we have stated, the Weather Man has promised us an ideal Tuesday. If his predictions should go astray, we beg that our guests will make every effort to be on hand, even though there may be a Summer shower at the time of sailing. THE BOATS WILL LEAVE ON TIME, THEY MUST LEAVE ON TIME in order that we may not interfere with the regular schedule of the Steamboat Company.

IMPORTANT: ALL PERSONS HOLDING TICKETS FOR THE 9 O'CLOCK BOAT MUST SAIL ON THAT BOAT; 9 O'CLOCK TICKETS WILL NOT BE HONORED ON 9:30 BOAT. UNDER NO CONDITION, UNDER ANY CIRCUMSTANCES, WILL BE ACCEPTED ON THE 9:30 BOAT. EVERY WOMAN AND CHILD OF WHATEVER AGE, EVEN INFANTS IN ARMS, MUST HAVE HIS OR HER INDIVIDUAL TICKET. POSITIVELY NO TICKETS WILL BE EXCHANGED FOR BOSTON AMERICAN COUPONS ON OR NEAR THE DOCK.

Following is a partial list of generous, big-hearted Boston concerns who are contributing tons of goodies to make the Boston American's Women's and Children's Days more enjoyable:

H. P. HOOD & SONS.

2,000 bottles of milk and 3,000 of their famous Sweethearts (a delicious confection of ice cream and fruit). Our guests will have an excellent opportunity to sample Hood's well known pasteurized milk.

MOXIE'S DADDY.

Frank Archer, "Moxie's Daddy," known everywhere as the main spring who stimulates and operates the great Moxie business, is personally interested in the distribution of Moxie favors and will see to it that his celebrated Moxie Candy Man will be on hand to guarantee every guest a share of the Moxie products. All of this in spite of the fact that the great plant is working overtime in its endeavor to fill regular orders.

POLAR PATTIES

The Polar Food Products Corp. of West Somerville each day will have 1,000 luscious Polar Patties for the mothers and children.

PARAGON PARK

Paragon Park has opened its gates wide to the mothers and children, admitting all who show the well known Boston American Identification Tag. No need to tell any child of the wonders in store for him at this great pleasure resort.

SAGAMORE BATH HOUSES

Every privilege, including bathing suits and lockers with the customary excellent service, is entirely free at the Sagamore Bath Houses. The proprietor will welcome every child and the Atlantic Ocean is the limit.

THE "BERWICK KIDDIES"

Berry and Wyckie, the "Kiddies" of the well known Berwick Cake Company, and personal acquaintance of thousands of the children on these excursions, will be on hand to assist in the distribution of the celebrated Berwick Pound Cake to every guest. Remember "The Cake That Makes Home Sweet Home."

MATELESS BODY SEEKS STATE CHARTER

The Widows and Widowers Social Club, Inc., of Boston, applied today for a charter to Secretary of State Cook.

The purpose of the new club, as outlined in a statement of its incorporators, is "of bringing together in social intercourse all unmarried white Christian persons above the age of twenty-five years."

Bertha L. White of No. 366 Columbus avenue is president of the organization; Henry E. Kelley of No. 366 Columbus avenue is secretary.

The other incorporators are: Frank Coughlin, No. 13 Ashland street; Mildred Howard, 8, Mitchell, No. 487 Shawmut avenue, Boston; Elizabeth Landin, No. 68 St. Stephen street, Boston; Francis J. Haines, Jr., No. 733 Tremont street, Boston; Laura B. Haine, No. 24 Humboldt street, Cambridge; A. N. Hobart, 549A Columbus avenue, Boston; Fred Ireland, No. 432 Columbus avenue, and Albert Canney, 10 Dover street, Boston.

The incorporators held their first meeting at No. 366 Columbus avenue. The petition for the charter was filed by the law office of John L. G. Glynn, Kimball Building.

Secretary Cook has, as usual, referred the petition to Police Commissioner Wilson.

"This is purely an organization to promote happiness among the widows and widowers of this city," said counsel for the club. "The organization has been running for more than a year and has grown to such an extent that it was decided best to incorporate. The organization brings the widows and widowers together for really good social times. They held a picnic a short time ago in Wellesley at which there were 200 present."

Rakovsky formerly was president of the Ukrainian Republic. The government purposes establishing a bank for foreign trade and to combine the foreign and internal trade departments into a single department of commerce, it was announced. Leonid Krassin, who has been minister of foreign trade will be head of the new department.

GIRL DISAPPEARS ON AUTO RIDE

State police, sheriffs and Boston police today threw out a dragnet to locate Miss Leslie Tolman, nineteen year old daughter of Dr. Henry Tolman of No. 130 Federal street, Salem, who was whisked away from Duxbury early Friday night.

The girl who is pretty was seen to step into an automobile a short distance away from the home of an aunt she was visiting. The machine sped away.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN'S BODY RECOVERED FROM CHARLES

The body of an unidentified man was taken from the Charles river near Harvard bridge today by Patrolmen McKinnon and Ramsey of the Metropolitan Park police. A plain gold band ring worn on the little finger may serve as a clue.

U. S. BALLOON 'GYPSY MOTH' FORCED DOWN AT GREENFIELD

Greenfield, July 7.—The United States forestry motor balloon "Gypsy Moth," on its way to Hennikerr, N. H., to war on the pests for which it is named, landed here at 10:30 a. m. today, daylight time, because of engine trouble. The craft was brought down without accident and moored in a meadow.

GIRL KILLER GETS 15 YEARS; PLEADS TO MANSLAUGHTER

Fall River, July 7.—Frederick Baker of Taunton, who was indicted for the murder of thirteen-year-old Arthur Scriva in Taunton on May 6, today smilingly pleaded guilty of manslaughter, in the Superior Court here. District Attorney Stanley P. Ball accepted the plea and Judge Dubuque sentenced Baker to eleven to fifteen years in State Prison.

JAIL BREAKER NABBED AFTER DESPRATE FIGHT

Louis F. Glover, who, with Victor L. Mason, escaped from the Dedham jail by cutting a hole through the roof last December, was captured today in Gardner by Officers Robinson and Deley of the State police and Patrolmen Sierens and Smith of the Westminster division of the State constabulary.

EVERETT GIRLS IN PANIC; EXPLOSION HURTS WORKER

An explosion in a varnish tank on the fourth floor of the building occupied by the Boston Varnish Company on Second street, Everett, drove a workman through the window and to the ground below.

The man is Joseph Rupert, No. 5 Circuit street, West Medford. He landed in some marshy ground below the plant.

BOY DROWNS IN OLD GAS TANK IN 'DARE' GAME WITH CRONIES

Because he was "leader" and wouldn't be "spunked" in feats of childish daring, seven-year-old Frank Batchelder of 18 Dorchester street, South Boston, was drowned in an abandoned illuminating gas tank, at Dorchester and First streets, South Boston.

Police, firemen and employes of the gas company rescued the body from the water-filled bottom of the tank, 35 feet below the floor of the building.

PLANE FALLS IN N. Y. HARBOR; THREE NAVY FLIERS RESCUED

New York, July 7.—A Navy airplane, in charge of Lieutenant Duffy, fell into New York Harbor today near Bay Ridge, Brooklyn. Lieutenant Duffy and two Navy men with him were rescued uninjured. The plane had set out from the Fort Hamilton Naval Air Station for test manoeuvres.

ARTILLERY MEN OFF FOR DEVENS

BATTERY B, 101ST ARTILLERY, BOARD CARS AT ARMORY

From early morning the North Station was filled with troops from Greater Boston armories, who boarded special trains for Ayer and were sent out in relays. Among the first to arrive were batteries of the 101st Field Artillery from the Commonwealth Armory in Allston. All of Colonel Erland Fish's command, except Battery A, which went over the road, were entrained before 10 a. m., the first battery leaving the armory at 6 a. m.

BEMIS FINED IN AUTO SHOOTING AT BEVERLY

Salem, July 7.—Frank W. Bemis of Lynn, driver of the party of young autoists fired upon by Beverly police on the morning of June 10 while passing through Beverly, was found guilty and fined on charges of reckless driving, failing to stop when ordered by police and driving without a license by Judge George B. Sears in Salem District Court today.

Bemis was fined $25 on the first charge, $25 on the second and $10 on the third charge. He appealed.

The hearing ended abruptly when Attorney Michael L. Sullivan, after exclusion of testimony by State Police Officer William F. Murray, testifying for the defence, arose and said:

FOR TRIAL BY JURY.

"I will put on no more witnesses. I will offer no more evidence. If this young man is found guilty he will have his trial before a jury."

Judge Sears thereupon announced his finding of guilty and the fines.

Much of the defence testimony, was excluded by Judge Sears following objections by Atty. John D. Feeney, counsel for Chief of Police "Lightning Jack" Hayes of Beverly.

Officer Murray had testified to conversations with Chief Hayes, who shot at members of the Bemis party. His testimony, in part, was in direct contradiction of that offered by Beverly police officers.

In raising objection to admission of certain testimony Atty. Feeney said:

"Every member of the auto party has been taught a lesson. Chief Hayes asks Your Honor to extend Bemis every consideration the circumstances will entitle him to. But midnight riding such as has been described here must stop."

PROBED BY SULLIVAN.

Here Attorney Sullivan rose and shouted: "My client wants neither mercy nor consideration from this court. They have shot us up and brought us into court and now they want mercy for us. We don't want it here, we'll get it from a jury."

Bemis furnished $500 bonds for his higher court appearance.

Chief Hayes Denounced as Rash Official

Police Chief John E. Hayes of Beverly, was denounced as a "rash and impetuous officer" by Bemis' counsel by Assistant District Attorney Edward F. Flynn in Salem District Court today during a hearing on the application of District Attorney William B. Clark for a warrant, charging Hayes with assault with a dangerous weapon on members of a Lynn automobile party in Beverly early June 10.

Judge Sears withheld decision on the application.

"If Chief Hayes had killed any of the young men and women that morning when he fired his revolver to 'warn them to stop' there is no question but he would be guilty of manslaughter," declared Flynn.

"The law gives no police officer the right to use a weapon to secure an arrest for a misdemeanor. A person pursued after commission of a misdemeanor should be allowed to escape before blood is shed to arrest him. An officer is only empowered to use force when force is used against him.

"The young men and women in Frank Bemis' party had a right to pass through Beverly that morning and they had a right to the protection of the police."

"Chief Hayes was acting in the role of a plain clothes officer. Members of the Bemis party had every right to believe he was a highwayman. The chief could have taken the number of the car or he could have followed it. He made no such action of the police.

In Come the Nordics
Gold Is Not Forgotten
Torture Dies Slowly
Rosenwald's Insurance

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1923, by Star Company)

LAST THURSDAY 1,451 Scandinavians, all very light blondes, came into the United States and hurried out West to work on farms.

Such migrating of light-haired, blue-eyed men has had much to do with changing the history of the world and of civilization.

BLUE-EYED MEN coming down from the Balkans and mixing with brown-eyed people from Asia made the population and glory of Greece.

Blue-eyed Nordics, mixing with dark-eyed men from the Italian peninsula, created the greatness of France.

It is a crime to have immigration laws that keep men of the kind out of the United States, or, for that matter, ANY good, ambitious member of the white race.

ANOTHER ATTEMPT has been made to get gold and jewelry from the Lusitania. The ill-fated ship went down with five millions in gold in her strong room and a million in gold and jewelry in the purser's safe.

Already the world begins to forget the skeletons, picked bare by fishes, inside that iron ship, but it will not forget that gold as long as there is any chance of getting it. For GOLD, we have excellent memories.

MEN THAT RULE the steel business have promised to "end the twelve hours a day, as soon as possible," and President Harding welcomes this "forward step in industry." This is about how it will stand in history:

Torture of witnesses as part of all judicial proceedings was abolished in France in the eighteenth century, thanks to the revolution.

Working men twelve hours a day, with occasional twenty-four-hour shifts in the steel mills, was abolished in the United States in the twentieth century, without a revolution.

THE DIFFERENCE between torturing men accused of no crime to make them confess and working men twelve hours a day in steel mills is only a difference of degree. They tortured men to get the truth out of them. We work men twelve hours a day to profit out of them. Of the two, the torture is rather more respectable.

CHICAGO BUSINESS firms have insured fourteen of their best men for more than fifteen million dollars. And that isn't heavy insurance. Julius Rosenwald, insured by his company for one million, might better have been insured for forty millions.

The great asset in every business is THE MAN that knows how to run it. In the case of Rosenwald, the public as a whole might well insure his life, for when he dies—may it be a hundred years from now!—intelligent philanthropy will lose one of its best workers and most generous givers.

HALF THE PEOPLE "invest" money without knowing what they are buying. 7 ead about the Cling Company, with thousands of stockholders. It was supposed to manufacture cutlery. It sold eight hundred thousand dollars' worth of stock, mainly to stenographers, servant girls and others ignorant of business, and hasn't yet started to build a plant. But it had five well-organized branches for selling stock to its victims. Its total assets were less than twenty-five thousand dollars.

Don't buy what you do not thoroughly understand.

MRS. PERRY was shot and killed by her sister-in-law. Another Mrs. Perry in Cass County, Texas. You as "Who was the man?" and are surprised to learn that in this case the women quarreled about a well. It's about a man, nearly always. With men quarreling and killing it's usually about money.

MRS. LOUISE ARNOLD, a New York widow, forty-six years old, mother of five, was told by Vincent Calvacca, father of eight, that he was unmarried and that he would marry her. When the time came he told her rather brutally that he was married two or three times over. She killed him with a knife. That sounds more natural than the Texas case.

SENATOR COUZENS of Detroit, who went into the Ford plant with fifteen hundred dollars and came out with thirty millions cash, says workmen ought to have five per cent. beer, that it would do no more harm than tea or coffee, and would discourage "bootleg" whiskey. Of 720 workers in one plant he found that 707 favored five per cent. beer and 13 opposed it. Anti-prohibition sentiment is found in big factories, but nevertheless drastic change in the prohibition law is unlikely for many a year to come.

BALLOON WRECKAGE SIGHTED

U. S. Air Service Rushes Rescue Boats to Scene in Lake Erie

Washington, July 7.—Major-General Patrick, chief of the Air Service, sent this telegraphic order to the commanding officer, Selfridge Field, today:

"Navy balloon 6698, Pilot Lieutenant Roth, reported down in Lake Erie. Send aircraft or two H B's to assist in search and rescue work. Permission to fly over Canada obtained here."

Indianapolis, July 7 (AP)—Fear that a balloon reported partially submerged and apparently unmanned, about twenty-five miles from Port Stanley, Ont., in Lake Erie, was that in which Lieutenants J. J. Roth and J. B. Anderson, naval airmen, left here July 4 in the national elimination race was expressed by officials of the contest today.

The balloon with basket partly submerged was sighted last night by the steamer Colonial, her captain reported, on his arrival at Port Stanley today.

There was no trace of the balloon's occupants. The tug Elsie Dorn was ordered out to investigate.

Roth's balloon is the only one unreported in the elimination contest all twelve others having landed in one place or another and recorded time flights.

The missing ship, U. S. Navy No. 6698, was silver in color, and bore the usual aerial service insignia, a red, white and blue circle in the centre of which was a red star. The balloon that was sighted by the steamship Colonial, which passed at Port Stanley this morning was reported to be blue in color. It was explained, however, that the sun might look blue from distance.

GIRL DANCES ON DESK OF GOVERNOR

Portraits of Former Executives of Massachusetts Pelted With Custard

By JO SWERLING.

The fifth article in a remarkable series.

There are three distinct classes on the hill in Boston's Bogus Bohemia—highbrows, lowbrows and no-brows.

The highbrows hold soirees, the lowbrows parties and the no-brows, which is composed of subnormals, morons and defectives of all descriptions, attend revels which are of such a nature that even in the frankest account they may not be described.

Probably the most famous affair ever held was the one in which one of the habitues of the hill, a novelist gave a farewell party. He was saying goodbye to crass commercialism, to trade, to the drab routine of his job at the State House, in whose shadow the village stands.

WENT LOCO.

He used the Governor's office to stage his party.

Eliot Paul is his name. Paul is one of the few—the very few—people of the Bohemian colony with any talent. He broke into the hill life overnight. According to his official biography, Dick Kimball, Paul led a normal life in Newton before he got loco on Bohemia.

When he came up to the village he took quarters in a shabby attic at No. 118 Myrtle street. There, with his oil lamp, his dingy organ and his shabby cot, he began to write.

His wife, known as Rose Brown, took up residence in another part of the village. Her studio was a salon, where sorrees were held nightly. Eliot never came to any of his wife's parties. But he began to give a few of his own.

COMES INTO FAME.

It began with the sale of his first book, "Indelible." When Eliot was writing "Indelible" he was left pretty much alone. But when he had sold it, he became the most popular man on the hill. The crowd deserted the salon of Rose Brown and came to worship in the attic of Eliot Paul.

Eliot received a check for $500 for royalties on the book.

The cadgers, sycophants and sofa-lizers of the hill took him, and took him fast.

Eliot started on a taxi ride to Montreal. He never got there, out he went as far as the taximan would take him. He is still paying money for that ride. It ended up in a drunken revel.

ELIOT BOUGHT.

There were scores of other drunken parties in Eliot's attic. Eliot bought.

As advanced as he is, Eliot was an innocent babe in arms in the hands of the grafters, grifters, tapmen and shillabers who hovered about his attic like buzzards around the corpse of a decaying intellect.

The village has a grapevine telegraph. The formula is simple. You go up to one of the mob and you buzz in his ear.

"So and so has just hapened Now for heaven's sake don't breathe a word of it."

In ten minutes it is spread over every section of the hill.

So whenever Eliot got a royalty check, the grapevine telegraph spread the joyous tidings. The gang came around. They told Eliot he was a great writer. They borrowed five, or ten, or what have you.

STATE HOUSE PARTY.

The second royalty check that came along brought with it an inspiration. Paul had been working in the State House. He had keys to the Governor's chambers. After a gathering of the elite, in which everybody got drunk, the suggestion was made that Paul take them all up to the State House to continue the party.

Paul fell for it. He had intended

ELIOT PAUL

Beacon Hill author, whose royalties fed the villagers for months. Now he has gone to Europe, leaving no forwarding address, and there is gloom on the hill.

Gone! Devotee of Hub's Bogus Bohemia Has Lost His Position

Boston's Bogus Bohemia on the Hill comes to light again today with the reported disappearance of William M. Stevenson, Jr., of No. 139 Bay State road, Boston.

Young Stevenson, who is twenty-seven, was until today field secretary of the Waltham Chamber of Commerce. For the past week he has been away from his home and from his duties with the Chamber of Commerce.

His position was accordingly declared vacant.

Several people are interested in the whereabouts of Stevenson, whose lapse dates from the time he began to frequent the Seven Arts Club on the hill, now hapily out of existence.

HOLDS $15 CHECK.

One of these is George Weather, promoter of the Waltham Spa, who holds a check tendered him by Stevens for $15. The check came back marked "no funds."

Another is Roy Caswell a taxi-driver of Waltham, who holds another check.

At present no criminal action is contemplated against Stevenson, providing he shows any inclination to make good the checks.

A reporter of the Boston American encountered Stevenson one day last week in the Commonwealth Hotel. He was at the time joining J. Hilton Smyth of Bolsonia and his new wife, the former Nan Mahoney of Charlestown.

It was a honeymoon breakfast of the Smyths that Mr. Stevenson was attending, and it was apparent that all three at the table—Hilton, Nan and Mr. Stevenson—were thoroughly under the weather. Mr. Stevenson was so far gone that he could hardly talk.

But as well as he was able to talk, he did as follows:

"I want it thoroughly understood, now and forever, that Hilton and Nan are married. I can guarantee that."

The Boston American has since made a similar charge.

"I'm the secretary of the Waltham Chamber of Commerce," Mr. Stevenson confided to the reporter. "I am a man of sound business reputation. Hilton and Nan are through with the village. If ever I see Hilton there I'll yank him out with my own hands.

"Hilton and Nan are planning to open a roadhouse. They have financial support. I am their manager.

"Hilton and Nan were married in New Jersey. Please make that announcement. I was present at the marriage."

Shortly thereafter the same reporter encountered Hilton and Nan, enjoying a bit of tiffin at the Adams House. He inquired after Mr. Stevenson.

"We don't know where he is," said Mr. Smyth.

RELIGIOUS FANATIC BLAMED

Police Work on That Theory in Probing Murder of Young Governess

Scarsdale, N. Y., July 7 (I. N.S.).—Dorothy Kauffman, the young governess wanted to "be like other girls."

And because she did, discarding the drab mother-hubbard and colorless poke bonnet, beneath which she hid her striking beauty, in the tiny Mennonite colony in which she was reared, deep in the Maryland hills, the girl was murdered.

Such, at least, is the theory upon which Sheriff George Warner, of Westchester county, and more than a score of deputies and detectives worked yesterday.

WORE ILL FITTING GARB.

Miss Kauffman came to New York a year ago. She wore the ill fitting garb of her religious faith. How she came to earn $200 to repay money borrowed to complete her education.

"One can easily imagine the girlish embarrassment she felt as she saw other girls—girls not as beautiful as she," Mrs. Oscar Harmer, closest friend of the slain girl said today. "Miss Kauffman bought a new dress. It was a vivid carmine, sleeveless and low cut.

"She appeared so beautiful in it, too," Mrs. Harmer added. It was this beauty, Sheriff Warner and his aids believe, which sent a religious fanatic, crazed with jealousy in his thoughts that others might win admiration, into the room which blinded him into plunging a seven-inch knife eight times into the girl's back and neck.

ARDENT LOVE LETTERS.

The theory is heightened by the finding of a number of ardent love letters written in language couched in deepest religious tone.

"Miss Kauffman never received attentions from a man here," Mrs. Harmer said. "I do not believe she loved any man. He whole mind was set on first earning enough to pay off her old debt and then secure a place as a teacher in the New York schools."

Th original theory of authorities that Miss Kauffman was slain by a negro fiend, a tramp reported in the neighborhood some hours before Miss Kauffman met her death, has been discounted following a post-mortem examination of the girl's body.

UNDERCLOTHES TORN.

Miss Kauffman was not attacked. Her undergarments—they were of silk, and, like the vivid colored dress, violated the tenets of her faith—were ripped to shreds however.

Nothing was taken from the home of Miss Kauffman's employer, although had robbery been the motive, silver plate and other valuables lay at the slayer's hand, police pointed out.

Detectives today concentrated on their efforts to solve the identity of a "queer-acting man" arrested at Dobbs Ferry, who, according to reports, mumbled something about "cutting up a woman."

Police Captain William McQuillen today once more went over the murder scene. The slayer, he believes, entered the house where Miss Kauffman was alone during the absence of her employers, securing a butchey knife in the kitchen, and then making his way to Miss Kauffman's bedroom, the man, without warning, plunged the knife into the girl's back. The body was not discovered until nearly 13 hours later

THUG VICTIM AND WIFE SUE EACH OTHER

Arthur C. Coker, former assistant register of probate in Middlesex County, who last year was lured into a taxicab by a woman and beaten by her companion, has reached the parting of ways with his wife, Mrs. Alice B. Coker of Somerville. They are suing each other for divorce in East Cambridge Court.

Mrs. Coker alleges cruel and abusive treatment and confirmed habits of intoxication on the part of her husband. Coker in turn accuses his wife of cruelty.

Coker almost died in June, 1922, following the attack upon him. He stepped into a taxicab with Frances Westcott of No. 416 Tremont street and Thomas De Lorey alias La Darr. De Lorey had just been released from the House of Correction. Police charged Miss Westcott with having invited Coker to ride for the purpose of robbery. They said she admitted the charge.

The taximan was stopped at Massachusetts and Commonwealth aves. Coker was beaten, robbed and left in a dazed condition. Police found him and hurried him to a hospital, where he was near death for a week.

De Lorey was held for trial, Miss Westcott appearing against him.

The Cokers were married in 1912. They separated last month.

CABLE BRIEFS

Queenstown.—Fire that threatened the lower part of the city was brought under control early today after having destroyed several houses.

Zurich, — The city's drive against illicit liquor, launched recently, has hit the police department with more force than it has the bootleggers. Police officials announce the suspension of eleven more patrolmen.

Chicago, July 7 (AP).—Defeated in efforts to promote unity of political action among minority political and industrial groups, but well satisfied with results, the Farmer-Labor Party and Federated Farmer-Labor Party delegates went home today, each party intent on putting its finger in the 1924 political pie.

Lincoln, L. I.—Lieut. Russell T. Maughan decided not to attempt his air flight from New York to San Francisco today as weather conditions were not favorable. He expects to take off either tomorrow or Monday.

Madrid.—Spain's Fascisti coup was believed today to have been nipped in the bud by the government's firm announcement that it would make every effort to protect itself from the faction headed by General Aguilera.

DISPUTE OVER CASH SEIZED AFTER THEFT

Captain Charles W. Searles who as property clerk of the Boston police department, as stakeholder for the money found on Herbert P. Shaughnessey and Edward E. Wallace when they were arrested after Peter A. Gaddis of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company had been robbed of upwards of $20,000 on April 6, has asked the Superior Court to decide to whom he shall pay the money.

The telephone company demands $5,771 found in possession of Wallace. Frederick M. J. Sheenan, counsel for Shaughnessey, under an assignment made by the latter, contends that he is entitled to $920.97, which Shaughnessey had at the time of arrest. The telephone company wil. try to prove that the money belongs to it and not to Mr. Sheenan.

'CRAZY THIEF' LEFT GEMS UNTOUCHED

Worcester, July 7.—That a "crazy thief" ransacked the mansion of Mather P. Whittall over the holiday is the theory of detectives who have been working on the case. The thief left thousands of dollars worth of jewelry and personal property untouched. Gems were tossed about, some taken from one room to another and left lying about, according to the detectives.

BANDITS SEIZE 90 CHINESE FOR RANSOM

MONTGOMERY GIRL MISSING

Indianapolis, July 7.—Mary Elope Montgomery, 16, whose father, Wilmer Montgomery, served part of a prison sentence for kidnaping his daughter in violation of a divorce decree and been the fugitive object of search, is being sought by police of this city today. Mary Elope disappeared Wednesday night.

Mrs. Ethel L. Frank, the girl's mother, was granted a divorce from Montgomery and custody of Elope shortly before she was kidnaped.

The child was traced through Ohio and Mexico. Montgomery was arrested in Mexico and returned to Indianapolis. Word, he was at Princeton, for attending the funeral of his grandmother, he escaped. Since 1918 he escaped from James J. Goodrich, then Governor, from Cuba fleeing to secure the child if he were granted a divorce, again disappeared with the girl. The mother gained possession of Elope in 1921.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER IS 84 TOMORROW

Tarrytown, N. Y., July 7.—John D. Rockefeller will celebrate his eighty-fourth birthday tomorrow.

In the morning he will attend services at the new community church. He has invited with a few other friends here, the New York Evening Post said today. Although Mr. McAdoo has not formally announced his candidacy, his supporters were declared to be confident his hat would be in the ring.

WORK OUT DETAILS FOR M'ADOO BOOM

New York, July 7.—Detailed plans for launching a William C. McAdoo for-president boom were worked out at a dinner of a dozen of his most intimate friends here, the New York Evening Post said today. Although Mr. McAdoo has not formally announced his candidacy, his supporters were declared to be confident his hat would be in the ring.

GLADYS CLARK

DEAD RULING IN RAYNHAM, SAYS GIRL VAGRANT

"We haven't seen the world, but we've been to Raynham. And believe little Gladys, it's worth paying admission to see that town. There's only one thing wrong with that place—they don't bury their dead. They sit there all around the streets and one has only government interest."

So declared Gladys Clark, seventeen-year-old vagrant of Southbridge, Mass., who, together with Thomas Hill and his wife, Rose Adler, each over 60, arrived in Concord late, L. I.

Constable William Pearce, who is also Raynham's chief of police, arrested the two leveled and trained animal lovers when they stopped in front of his home.

HARDING SEES VIRTUE IN FILM

President Harding in his Meacham address said that the scouts in "The Covered Wagon" "surpassed our fancies. Fancies of whom? Clearly Kit Carson, Jim Bridger, Buffalo Bill and the two or three other great figures immortalized in Western history for their conquest of the Rockies. In fact, counterfeit presentments did parade before President Harding in the Meacham pageant representing the end of the covered wagoners' long Oregon Trail.

If Mr. Harding looked at his "Covered Wagon" programme, he saw Kit Carson scheduled to be played by Guy Oliver, and without doubt the representation of the bewhiskered old scout in the Majestic epic is Kit Carson. But in the subtitles on the screen Kit Carson suffers a sad transmogrification into one Joe Dunstan, shakily described as "a messenger from Kit Carson."

Now who bewhiskered Kit Carson and how come that Mr. Harding didn't speak up in defense of his transmogrified friend? The picture epic shows the truth of history that Kit loved his cups, and on occasion a long drinking bout would cause him to mount his pony backwards. We wonder why Kit himself was edited out of the titles in favor of the unknown Dunstan, and perhaps that is the reason Hon. Will Hays been "uplifting" again?

Dancing No Work at All, Says Miss Delaney

"Dancing is simple enough when you know how," says Patsy Delaney, the terpsichorean housemaid of Cohan's "The Rise of Rosie O'Reilly" at the Tremont Theatre. "As a matter of fact, I often wonder why some one never started 'dancing taught by mail,' for it could be done, I really believe, and successfully too. In the first place, dancing is simply walking to music. If you do not believe it, watch some one dance, and through the various steps just count in the time they are dancing. Notice how the count repeats at the end of every measure, if it is two-four time, count four to every measure, if in three-four time, count it one-two-three. When you get the routine of the counts in your mind, walk to the counts, slowly at first, and as your feet become accustomed to the figures of the dance in your mind, increase the tempo of the counts. Almost before you realize what has taken place, your mind and feet are in perfect unison, and you are walking the dance that originally seemed so difficult.

SPECIAL CONCERTS

Seldom do Boston music lovers have an opportunity during the Summer months of hearing nationally famous musicians or musical organizations. But this Summer several notable music treats are in store and the first of them comes tomorrow when Isham Jones and his orchestra will give concerts at Gordon's Capitol Theatre, Allston, and at Gordon's Central Square Theatre, Cambridge.

Burton Holmes, of travelogue fame, and W. O. Runcle, his cinematographer, have just completed a motor and aeroplane trip from Monte Carlo to Algeria. BRAVES FIELD NIGHT SHOWS POPULAR

According to the new arrangement made by Charles H. Wuerz of the Braves Field night attractions, the dancing, with Alex Hilde's forty-piece jazz syncopating orchestra furnishing the music, will be from 8 o'clock until 9:30 night. Then comes the picture, during which the band plays the sort of music which you love and in a way that carries you along as do all great bands and orchestras. After the picture comes the fireworks.

The popularity of the big grandstand at the ball park on warm nights is increasing rapidly. Some writers and publishers have been keeping Alex Hyde, the director of the band, very busy these last few weeks. They feel that his band given their work the best possible advertisement and are rushing to him with all of the latest.

Allen Lake and Gaston Glass make a splendid pair in "The Spider and the Rose," which will be released for the first time in connection with the Braves Field nights shows next week. It is a story of Southern California back in the romantic days when Spanish sons and daughters dominated the country. There is something more than an extraordinary cast in "The Spider and the Rose." There is a wonderful production on an elaborate scale and with everything that goes to make screen success. In it there is a little bit of "Robin Hood," "Suzanna" and "Blood and Sand."

Hoyt's Revue, With Pretty Girls, at Norumbega

A special bill of vaudeville and picture features will be presented as a special Sunday attraction in the open air theatre at Norumbega Park tomorrow and, beginning Monday, Hoyt's Revue will open a two-weeks' engagement, offering a combination of vaudeville and musical comedy entertainment. Heading the cast in the Hoyt show will be Madeline Boland and Lew Brems, and the company will include Frank Soper, Grace Williams, Fred Wheaton, Arthur Brooks, Bob Raby and Peggy Welsh. A graceful chorus of engaging charm is promised.

Madeline Boland

The feature photoplay for the week will be "The Probation Wife," with Thomas Meighan and Norma Talmadge in the leading roles. Another picture will be Irene Castle in "Slim Shoulders."

PROVINCETOWN TRIPS

The popularity of the sail to Provincetown on the Steamship Dorothy Bradford is increasing every day as evidenced by the crowds who are enjoying this outing. The Steamship Dorothy Bradford leaves Bay Line Wharf, No. 400 Atlantic avenue week days at 8:30 a. m. and on Sunday and holidays at 10 a. m. (daylight saving time).

BOY ELECTROCUTED BY HIGH-TENSION WIRE

Pittsfield, July 7.—After an all night search for Raymond L. Burneau, thirteen, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Burneau of No. 7 Newell street, the boy's body was found under a high-tension wire of the Pittsfield Electric Company at Sackett Brook in New Lenox. Face hands and clothing were burned and it is believed he was electrocuted after he had climbed a pole nearby and was flung to the ground.

BEAUTIFUL WEEK-END AUTO TOUR TO NARRAGANSETT PIER

MARVELOUS MARINE VIEWS AND GOOD ROADS

By H. E. CASEY.

With the advent of the motor car to supplement New England's natural advantages there arises a demand for the best route through this scenic wonderland, which includes the varied scenery of the rolling farm lands and the rugged coast of southern New England with the most enjoyable feature of a trip—a first-class hotel at the end of a day's run along with tea rooms, where one may stop for lunch.

On this trip published today for our readers the tourist will find three detours over good roads but a few miles longer than on the main highway. In going from Boston to Providence it is better after you leave Wrentham to drive via Mansfield, perhaps a few miles longer, but better roads and less traffic. From East Providence to Narragansett via shore route construction work is going on. Here the tourist will find one-way traffic, and it is advisable to drive slow as the road for a few hundred feet is very bad.

OVER SMOOTH ROAD.

The inland route from Wickford to Narragansett Pier is all smooth road and very pretty, but not as picturesque as the shore route, which takes in the drive along the waterfront and beautiful Saunderstown.

Starting at the Brunswick Hotel at Boylston and Clarendon streets, over Clarendon to Commonwealth avenue, turning left, crossing car tracks to Kenmore square, turning left over Brookline avenue to Jamaica Pond parkway at Huntington avenue, take right hand drive around pond as there is a detour in parkway. Continue parkway to Centre street on Charles River, cross bridge, straight ahead to fork in road, turn left over river bridge to Dedham. Car tracks straight ahead on Court street to Washington street, following trolley to railroad bridge. Detour under railroad bridge for short distance following detour signs to Norwood Centre.

PEARL LAKE INN.

Bear right on grade and straight ahead to Walpole. Bear left at fork in road and follow detour signs over good tarred roads about four miles, returning to main road at Wrentham, turn right off main road for Duffy's Lake Pearl Inn. Situated directly on the lake where you will find excellent boating, bathing, and fishing, and whether traveling alone or with a large party, you will find accommodations to suit your requirements. In the dining room you will find a metropolitan atmosphere, which is most pleasing to the traveler and the table will be kept to that high standard of excellence which in the past has always met the approval of the guests.

Straight ahead through Plainville to North Attleboro, straight ahead with trolley, under railroad bridge, meeting trolley on Broadway. Cross railroad track leaving trolley on Summit street. Cross bridge over Ten Mile River, bearing left with trolley, fork in road, bear right on Thayer street cross Prospect street, and go down steep hill into Providence.

BEAUTIFUL SAUNDERSTOWN.

From Dorrance street turn right on Weybosset street, bear left on Broad street to Elmwood avenue, turning right at Apponaug avenue. At station, follow trolley up grade to Apponaug avenue, turn left with trolley to East Greenwich, straight ahead at four corners, turn left into Wickford through Hamilton straight ahead into Saunderstown, left turn for Newport Ferry and Saunders House.

A short drive down grade at Saunderstown brings you to the Newport Ferry landing, where is located the Saunders House and "Tea Room." Here hospitality is extended to the vacation seeker and tourist for an over night stay, with a delightful view of the bay and beach and beautifully furnished. The Saunders House offers every convenience for motor parties. A dining room where you can enjoy the finest of foods and in connection Mr. Vodrey has also a tea room where you desire a light lunch and tea. As for a beautiful location it is hard to find anywhere that would compare with it.

NARRAGANSETT PIER.

Here the road is under construction and one way traffic for a short distance straight ahead on main highway to Narragansett Pier.

This place needs little description, for it has long been famous. The natural advantages of this resort are unequalled in New England—its beautiful scenery and a beach unsurpassed for bathing, boating and fishing, all combine to make this one of the finest and most attractive resorts in the Atlantic coast. There are many fine hotels to accommodate tourists, such as the "Breakers" and the "Carlton."

The Carlton Hotel, first class in its appointments and with a particular clientele, is a favorite turning place for the polo players during the time such sport takes place at Narragansett. It is situated directly on the water front overlooking the broad ocean and equipped in every way for the most discriminating guest. Under the management of Mr. Francois Gioga the cuisine is of the highest standard.

The Breakers at Narragansett Pier offers every inducement to the tourist to come to Narragansett. Mr. C. N. Watts has a hotel that is up to date in every way rooms with private bath and en suite and an excellent home table. There are attractions for the younger set such as dancing every Wednesday and Saturday evenings at the Breakers.

Return via inland route through Wickford thence back over same route to Providence.

Leave Providence, returning over same route to Pawtucket and Attleboro. Pass under bridges and follow trolley to Pleasant street, turning right with trolley into Norton. Turn left around church and keep straight ahead into Mansfield.

Mansfield Tavern solves the problem for the business or professional man looking for a Summer home within commuting distance of Boston. The food at the tavern is of the choicest, and broiled lobster, chicken and steak dinners are specialties. Suites have groups of two, three and four connecting bedrooms with living rooms and there are also single rooms with and without baths. All have beds of surpassing comfort.

Other points worthy of mention, are the electric elevator, fireplaces, ball room, tennis court, sun parlor and fireproof garage. Excellent motor highways radiate from the Tavern and conveniently near are a riding school, golf course and a lake for bathing and boating. The Tavern offers a real home for a week-end, a month, a summer, or a year.

Turn left at Common and cross railroad. Turn right with trolley at four corners, straight ahead through Foxboro. Then turn right leaving car line through Sharon and Canton, meeting trolley at Ponkapoag.

Follow trolley through Blue Hill station turning right on Canton avenue, then left on Parkway to Mattapan via Forest Hills and Jamaicaway to Boston.

NO GROUND NEEDED ON SET

Radio engineers from Columbia University, while carrying on experiments with "dead spots" in Bedham, N. Y., have demonstrated that a short antenna and no ground are remarkably effective with an ordinary regenerative set.

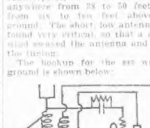
Although their experiments were directed primarily toward the cause for "dead spots" they incidentally demonstrated many things of interest to the vacation-ist who wishes to take a small portable radio set with him.

The receiver used in the experiments was a regulation single circuit tuner consisting of a variocoupler, of which the secondary was the feed-back coil. The aerial used was fifty feet of bare wire wound on a reel, and from the effect—length of the antenna could be varied easily.

The results of their experiments are shown in the accompanying table.

The table shows that best results were obtained with no ground or counterpoise, with an antenna of anywhere from 25 to 50 feet long from 10 to 50 feet above the ground. The short, low antenna was found very difficult, in that a strong signal caused the antenna and upset the tuning.

The hookup for the set without ground is shown below:



The coils are primary and secondary of a variocoupler, tapped as desired, and tuned between taps by a variable condenser, preferably with vernier.

The idea of the fishing reel aerial is commended to the vacationist.

WIDE WAVE BAND IS COVERED

BY THE RADIO EDITOR.

The standard receiver for all round use for both distance and local work is the regenerative type; but many users of this style receiver are having difficulty securing regeneration over the entire wave-length band of the broadcasters from 222 to 527 meters.

The solution of this difficulty is the easily-made capacity feed-back receiver shown in the accompanying diagram.

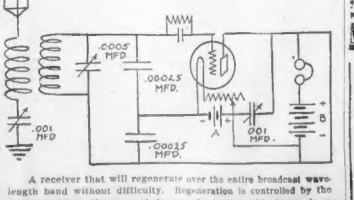
In this receiver, the plate circuit is brought into resonance with the secondary circuit by capacity tuning. When a .001 mfd. variable condenser is used, this allows the plate circuit to be turned over a very large band of wave-lengths and at the same time permits of close adjustment.

A vernier attachment to the condenser makes the tuning even finer, and adds noticeably to the range of the receiver.

The two other variable condensers are merely for tuning the primary and secondary circuits respectively.

The Willow Tea Room Saunderstown R.I.

LONG WAVE RECEIVER



A receiver that will regenerate over the entire broadcast wave-length band without difficulty. Regeneration is controlled by the third variable condenser, and the use of a vernier with this condenser allows very nice tuning for long distance work. The fixed condensers are of the standard size, easily procurable, and the entire receiver may be set up quickly and easily.

Hub Fat Men Wear Corsets and Regain Shape

Research in Boston verifies the report that fat men are wearing corsets. Hundreds have thus regained the sylphlike form of youth.

Leading corsetieres of the city thus explain the fast disappearance of the fat man with the protuberant belt-line from Boston.

They explain that the type of corset worn by men differed somewhat from the woman's corset. It is somewhat abbreviated and more clinging.

TELL RULERS OF WORLD TO TRY CHRISTIANITY

Winona Lake, Ind., July 7 (AP).—An address to the rulers of the world saying that "the time has come to try Christianity" in international relationships was dispatched today by the International Conference on Christian Citizenship to the capitals of virtually every nation of the world.

The text, declaring that the nations "should unite in creating new standards based upon the teachings of Jesus," was approved by delegates representing many dominations of churchmen and more than a score of foreign countries.

The address was sent to the sovereignshead or principal executive of more than fifty nations, including every world power of Europe and Asia. The action was presented by Dr. Charles Stelle, of New York.

POLICE TO MAKE PASTOR PROVE RUM CHARGE

Washington, July 7.—Who was the Washington society leader who had a barrel of liquor carried into her home while three policemen looked on?

That is the question Rev. Henry Allen Tupper, pastor of the First Baptist Church, will be called on to explain by the police.

Dr. Tupper, addressing a Baptist convention near Norfolk, made the flat charge that a society woman here had bought the liquor so she could "properly entertain" her guests at a reception.

The clergyman's charges created somewhat of a sensation here and were immediately taken up by District Commissioners James F. Oyster. The clergyman has not yet returned from Norfolk.

ASK GREEN TO CUT RADIO WAVE

Colonel Edward H. R. Green, who broadcasts New York concert programs from his million-dollar radio estate at South Dartmouth on Buzzards Bay, has been asked to reduce his wave length because of interference with the Medford Hillside station.

Both stations broadcast at 360 meters. Complaints have reached C. C. Kolster, government radio supervisor, that the two different programs intermingle. It is impossible for thousands of amateurs to receive one without interference from the other.

Colonel Green originally applied for a station on 319-meters wave length, but government reallocation recently assigned his station to Class C 360 meters.

The Green station, known as WMAF, broadcasts the New York programs of WEAF every evening. It is located about seventy miles from WGI, the Medford station. The New York programs are received by telephone and broadcasted direct from the long-distance wires. They are also sent out from New York on 492 meters wave lengths.

CARMEL IS FOND OF IKE, BUT OUT OF TUNE

Los Angeles, July 7.—Carmel Meyers, motion picture actress and former queen in musical comedy, is reconciled to the fact she will no longer glitter as "Blue Eyes" for Ike Kornblum, song writer. The divorce she has obtained from Kornblum leads her to the final conclusion their love-song was out of pitch.

The pictures are her "call of the wild" and He can practice law, his vocation when his muse is silent.

A clash of temperament brought about a separation. Carmel said she wanted to live like her real self after she got through her work in the studios.

But Ike, sitting at his piano, insisted on hammering out those tunes which he knew the Broadway song writers wanted.

Miss Meyers charged her husband with desertion. The couple separated in May of '22, but kept it secret as they had their marriage. In fact, many of their friends never guessed they were married until they separated.

"We still admire each other, strange as that may seem. The affection will probably continue through life. I wish him much success and and happiness.

"I know he will make an ideal husband for some other girl, but that girl cannot be me."

WIFE QUITS ACTOR TO TEST LOVE

OLGA EVERARD HILLIARD

Mrs. Hilliard, who has recently inherited $14,000,000, declares her husband, Robert Hilliard, the well-known actor, is hard to get along with. "For ten years I have entered to Bob's whims and idiosyncrasies" she says. "There is no reason to get a divorce. We are too closely bound to separate for good."

News Kept Secret by Mayor's Orders When Others Fail at License Bureau

After five days of effort to keep the news secret Miss Julia Agnes Sullivan of No. 237 Highland street, Roxbury, filed marriage intentions at the City Hall last Tuesday to wed Francis J. Tyner of No. 43 Winthrop street, Roxbury one of the three men acquitted a week ago of the theft of $26,000 telephone payroll.

The same pair filed marriage intentions at the City Hall in 1921, but they lapsed after six months.

Miss Sullivan appeared at the license bureau Tuesday and after filing the intentions requested clerk McClelland to keep the record from the press. She was told this could not be done. She called in Father Sullivan of All Saints' Church. He appealed and was told the record could not be secret.

MAYOR TO THE RESCUE.

Finally Mayor Curley appeared in the unusual case and is alleged to have ordered Clerk McClelland not to give out the facts for publication.

Today Tyner at first denied any knowledge of the filing of the intentions. Later he admitted they had been filed. "We did not want the facts to get into the papers," he said. He would not say why he wished the secrecy. Neither would he tell what brought him and Miss Sullivan together again.

Tyner was the third man arrested charged with the holdup and robbery of the telephone company payroll from Peter Gaddis last April. A week ago when he and the other two accused men went to trial in Superior Court they were freed by a jury. A "jury fixing" scandal broke and an investigation was started.

Tyner said today that the wedding will take place "in about two weeks."

Set Free, Will Now Marry

FRANCIS J. TYNER.

One of the three acquitted of theft in the $26,000 telephone payroll holdup, is scheduled to wed Miss Julia A. Sullivan of Roxbury.

STATE PUTS O.K. ON 11 BARRED COMPANIES

Following a flood of protests, the State Department of Public Utilities today restored to the white list eleven of the corporations whose sales of stock were banned yesterday.

Some were restored because their stock was already listed for sale on the Boston Stock Exchange.

The others restored had received the State's demands for information of their financial status and had either thrown the State's letters into the wastebasket or for some reason neglected to supply the information. They came through with the financial facts today.

The eleven corporations whose names were taken off the banned list: Commonwealth Ice and Cold Storage Company, Pioneer Petroleum Company, Syracuse Hotel Corporation, Max Pollack and Company, Asbestos Textile Company, Forest Hills Hospital, Inc., Bald Theatres Company, National Shubroco Company, Hamon Consolidated Gold Fields, Hardy Coal Company and Freeborn Engineering Company.

Middlesex & Boston Notifies Employes 30 P. C. Increase Won't Be Granted

The management of the Middlesex & Boston Street Railway Company today notified the union of employes of their oad that the union's demands for a 30 per cent. increase in wages had been refused by the directors.

The company's agreement with the union expired July 1 and the demand was made previous to that date.

The matter will now go to an arbitrator, who will be chosen by President Pitt F. Drew for the road, and Attorney James H. Vahey for the union. It is expected that the arbitrater will be chosen within the next ten days and begin hearings at once.

WILLIAMS URGES MILITARY TRAINING

Colonel George Williams of the Militia Bureau of the First Corps Area, addressed members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce at their headquarters. He stressed the importance of training youth for citizenship.

Colonel Williams

Colonel Williams has already spoken in the last three months before sixty-four different societies on the subject.

"It is hard to convince some people," he said, "that army officers abhor war and do not want it, but they do not want to be caught again with untrained men under their command during war. Military training is nothing but good sensible athletic training."

COLDEST SUMMER OF 200 YEARS IN BERLIN

Berlin, July 7.—While America is reported to have experienced the hottest June weather on record, all Berlin records for cold weather in June were broken. The past month set a new low mark for more than 200 years by recording an average temperature of 55½ degrees. The nearest approach to this figure was in 1772 when an average of 54 degrees for June was scored. All records for June rainfall were broken with 22 days of rainfall. However, July has warmed up a little.

TYPIST SUES 2 MEN, CHARGING ASSAULT

Charging that she was brutally attacked and beaten in a Boston office by Arthur Pinkovitch and Ralph H. Nearé, both of Roxbury, Miss Jeanette R. Gilman, a public stenographer, has brought suit for $5,000 against the two men.

Miss Gilman claims the two men attacked her in the office of Nearé at No. 139 Lincoln street, where she had gone to do some work for Nears. She declares she was seized, kicked and otherwise beaten so badly that she was confined to her bed for some time afterwards as a result.

PEEPING PROWLER HUNTED IN LYNN

A prowler and peeper about the Lakeside section of Lynn has frightened women and young girls for the last week to such an extent that male members of th households have laid several traps to catch the unwelcome visitor. Now they have appealed to the police. The suspect was seen coming from Cook's barn on Rockdale avenue. He is described as being between 25 and 30 years old, five feet, seven inches, 140 pounds and of dark complexion.

MARSHAL THREATENS ARRESTS

Notice Served After City Solicitor Proclaims Shoe Strike Is Illegal

Brockton, July 7.—Beginning Monday, all picketing of Brockton shoe factories must cease, according to an ultimatum issued by City Marshal Daniel T. Guerin.

The notice was served after City Solicitor James E. Handrahan had handed down a decision that the strike was illegal. Announcement of the decision caused consternation in the ranks of the shoe workers and it was believed the crisis in the strike would be reached next week.

Included in Marshal Guerin's ultimatum was the announcement that anybody found picketing in the vicinity of the shoe factories would be promptly arrested. The decision supports the recent decision of the Supreme Court.

Mayor Manning refused to allow the permit for a mass meeting at the O'Donnell Playground unless all speeches were delivered in English.

52 DIVORCED TWICE WILL WED GIRL OF 22

Samuel W. Bridgham, fifty-two years old, journeyed from East Providence to Boston today to file marriage intentions in view of taking a third wife. Samuel is to marry pretty Yvonne Perra, aged twenty-two, of No. 41 Angell street, Providence.

Edith Bridgmen divorced Samuel in 1920. Te next time, in 1922, Samuel got the divorce, charging Grace Bridgham with extreme cruelty. His two Rhode Island marriages having ended so disastrously, Samuel came to Boston this time hoping to break the jinx.

JAILLESS JURY RETURNS 41 INDICTMENTS

The new Suffolk County grand jury, which is just beginning its six months of service, today returned forty-one indictments and eight no bills to Judge Lummus in the Superior Court. District Attorney O'Brien announced that he had investigated every member of the jury and that not one of them had a criminal record.

Among the indictments returned was one for perjury against William E. Stewart. In a case for driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor brought in the Roxbury Court against John J. Condon, Stewart testified that he and not Condon was driving the car. The government brought witnesses who testified that Stewart was not in the car at the time Condon was arrested.

Giuseppe Pellulo, who stabbed Nunzio Masaro while both were inmates at the Deer Island prison, was indicted for assault with a dangerous weapon, and Henry F. Naas was indicted for manslaughter. It is alleged that Naas struck John J. Plunkett with a hand bag in a Charlestown street car, and that Plunkett died as a result of the blow.

ACTOR HILLIARD AND RICH WIFE SEPARATE

New York, July 7.—Robert Hilliard, one of the best known actors along the Great White Way, and his wife, Olga Everard Hilliard, have separated to test their love.

Robert Hilliard.

They want to see if a rest will regain their bliss.

After ten years of catering to a husband's temperament, especially the overdeveloped temperament of an actor husband, it is necessary to separate for awhile," the wealthy Mrs. Hilliard said.

"Otherwise, I would have got on my husband's nerves and he would have got on mine until we couldn't stand each other."

"I will feel so much better after the separation is over and my husband will have had time to quiet down add not be so cranky. Then we will go back together and be happy again."

Rumor has said they will be divorced, but Mrs. Hilliard says on this point:

"Certainly there is no reason to get a divorce. There is no one else so far as I am concerned, and there is no one else so far as Bob is concerned. We are too closely bound to each other to separate for good."

CROWDS SEEE LYNN GIRL TAKE POISON

Rose Castil, seventeen years old, No. 11 Wheeler street court, Lynn, drank a quantity of iodine and fell screaming to the floor of the Narrow Gauge Railroad station on Market street, Lynn, in the presence of hundreds of persons.

The girl was first seen walking jauntily about the station. Then she left the station to converse with John Kane, No. 85 Sagamore street, Lynn, whose taxicab was parked in front of the station.

Returning to the ticket window she drank the poison.

Attracted by her screams, Kane rushed into the station and took her to the Lynn Hospital. Her name is on the danger list. She answers questions as to her motive by fits of sobbing.

According to information obtained by the police, a family quarrel was the girl's probable reason for attempting suicide.

$43,450,000 PAID ACCIDENT VICTIMS

Injured workers and families of those killed in industry received more than $43,450,000 in the ten years since the Workmen's Compensation Act became law, according to a summary by the Industrial Accident Commission today. Of that sum, $7,270,469 was paid as the result of deaths in industry, $25,322,975 for non-fatal cases and $10,855,926 for medical and hospital services given injured men and women. There were about 1,500,000 industrial accidents in this State during that time.

NEW COMPETITION FOR SONG FOR YALE

New Haven, July 7.—Failure of Yale to find a suitable song out of a list of 162 manuscripts results in the announcement of a new competition for the $1,000 anonymous prize. Yale wants a song to supplant "Bright College Years," the tune of which is "Wacht am Rhine."

The new competition, which will close on May 1, 1924, will be divided into two parts. The first part, which now is effective and which will continue until January 1, 1924, is open to Yale alumni and students only and is for words only. On January 1, 1924, one or more sets of words will be made public and the competition for a musical setting will begin. Unlike the competition for words, that for the music will be open to the general public, continuing until May 1.

OLYMPIA THEATRES SELLING NO STOCK

In reply to the Public Utilities Commission with reference to the action taken in barring 203 corporations in Massachusetts from further sale of securities the Olympia Theatres, Inc., through its secretary, Irving A. Isaacs, stated: "We have never received a request from the Commission for information in regards to the affairs of our company. We feel that the Commission has taken a wrong move. We have not sold stock to the public at large and have not sold any for quite some time."

LEGION WINS CASE AGAINST EX-EDITOR

Chicago, July 7.—Arthur Lorenz, former editor of the Staats Zeitung, a German language newspaper, was found guilty of charges by the American Legion of publishing an editorial referring to the legion members in derogatory terms. A motion for a new trial will be heard July 21.

PRESCRIPTIONS MAY GO TO UPPER COURT

Washington, July 7.—Indications are growing that the next feature of the prohibition law to be brought into the Supreme Court will be the limitation it places on the right of physicians to prescribe liquor.

A decision by Judge Bourquit at Helena, Mont., is the second in recent weeks in which Federal courts have held the physicians' limitation section of the law unconstitutional. Law enforcement officials here appear to regard an ultimate ruling by the Supreme Court is necessary to clear away confusion.

$200,000 ZIMAN ATTACHMENT WITHDRAWN

The $200,000 suit started by Miss Rose Levine, Boston burlesque actress, against Louis D. Ziman, Newton real estate broker, has been settled out of court and the action withdrawn.

Mr. Ziman and Miss Levine, who is known on the stage as "Rose Champion," declared today that the suit was one which involved "nothing but a business transaction."

"Miss Levine was my housekeeper," said Mr. Ziman. "I agreed to purchase a piece of property for her which she was to receive as wages for her work. I failed, unavoidably, in my part of the transaction, and she slapped the $200,000 attachment on me.

"That is all there is to it. I never made any charges of blackmail against her and want that understood. It was purely a case involving wages and a purchase of property. We have settled the matter agreeably and the case has been withdrawn. I want it understood that there was no love affair mixed in it at all."

Miss Levine declared all she wanted was that Ziman come through with the original agreement on her wages.

"He has settled and I want the scandal idea squelched," she declared.

SHOE STRIKERS GET HAVERHILL AID

Haverhill, July 7.—The first instalment of the $5,000 contributed by the Shoe Workers' Protective Union for the aid of the Brockton strikers has been forwarded to Brockton by General Secretary William J. Ryan. Donations of several hundred dollars from the coffers of the individual locals also accompanied the ... contribution from the union's general fund.

General Agent Asa'in E. Gill of the local union, who is in daily touch with the Brockton situation, declares that the strikers are holding their own.

DOUBLE GIFTS BLIGHT HER LOVE DREAM

Usually it's a case of too much mother-in-law. Miss Esther Portnoy of No. 86 Poplar street, Chelsea, found it a case of too much sister-in-law.

"Every time my sweetheart gave me a present he had to give his sister-in-law one, too," she told the court at Chelsea today.

The young woman's fiance, Harry Mason, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Dora Mason, had been brought into court on complaint of Miss Portnoy. The girl alleged that they assaulted her in a dark hallway and took from her a $500 diamond ring, which Mason had given her as an engagement token.

Mason couldn't be found, and the case was continued until he could be located. The Portnoy girl has only been in this country 13 months and can not speak English. Her fiance has been here for 10 years and thusly she lays the unhappiness on their incompatibility.

SAVED FROM WATER AT SO. BOSTON BEACH

Joseph J. Joyce, twenty-nine years old, of No. 257 East Ninth street, South Boston, was rescued from drowning of Carson Beach, South Boston, by his companion, Joseph J. Barrett, of the same address. Joyce was seen to disappear from the surface of the water after an attack of cramps. His cries attracted Barrett who grasped the drowning man and brought him to the shore. There Joyce was revived by Patrolman Patrick J. McDaniels of the City Point police, and removed to the City Hospital.

DEMAND E. BOSTON CAR LINE CONTINUE

Discontinuance of the Lexington street car line, East Boston, which goes into effect tonight, has aroused such a protest among car riders that a mass meeting will be held tomorrow in Music Hall in the demand that the line be kept running. Unsafe conditions of the street and car track bedding is given as the reason for discontinuing the line.

N. E. ROADS HEARING PUT OFF UNTIL SEPT.

Washington, July 7—Granting requests made by the Governors of New England states, the Interstate Commerce Commission today postponed until September 24 its hearings in Boston on railroad consolidation proposals which affect that territory. They were to have been held in July.

MAN, PET AIREDALE, KILLED UNDER TRAIN

Milton, N. H., July 7.—Alfred J. Vachon and his pet airedale dog were instantly killed when the truck he was driving was struck by a train at the Milton Ice Company crossing here. Vachon was hurled 175 feet by the locomotive and his body mangled beyond recognition. The dog, who was seated beside his master, was thrown in another direction.

AUTO VICTIM SUES WOMAN FOR $10,000

Worcester, July 7.—Struck down and seriously injured by an automobile while standing in the "safety zone" on Pawtucket street, Alfred Scullin of Pawtucket has sued Nina P. Fogerty of Worcester for $10,000. He suffered broken ribs and other injuries.

THE WAYS OF A HUSBAND—By ANN LISLE

A Splendid Sequel to the Famous Story of Wedded Life, "When a Girl Marries"

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Jim and Anne find happiness again on a honeymoon spent in the apartment of Betty Winston, loaned for the occasion. They go to Dreamwold for a Sunday dinner with Jeanie and are met in the grounds by Rosa, who ignores Anne. Rosa advises the discharge of Mabel Storrs to save the big salary. This Anne resents. Evvy helps Anne arrange her apartments and a dinner is given as a housewarming. Phoebe grows hysterical on receipt of Carlotta's wedding invitation. Betty speaks to Anne about Ralph's fondness for the latter.

By Ann Lisle

IT was after 8 when Neal walked as far as my apartment with me. To my astonishment, Jim was already there. His greeting was an exclamation of irritation because he'd been waiting half an hour for me.

"But you didn't know precisely when you were coming," I protested. "You said"——

"But you didn't know I'd be back as soon as possible," Jim snapped. "I told you I was through with my business. Finishing I went to meet at Springdale hadn't any more time. And I didn't want to hang around.

"Where is Springdale?" I asked idly, wondering why the name seemed vaguely familiar. "I'd like to solve the mystery of that phone message."

"Mystery?" laughed Jim, too heartily. "About my calling you? Why shouldn't I? It wasn't extravagant. Springdale is only two hours from the city—right at the foot of the mountains."

Suddenly memory played one of her old tricks. I knew clearly where I'd heard the name before. The Ugly Beauty I'd run across again in the tourist agency on the day I was investigating trips that closed the mountain tour with demand that it end at Springdale, since it was near enough the city for week-end guests. And Jim had insisted later that I take the lake trip—not the mountain tour.

"I've heard of Springdale before," I said in a voice which astonished me by its quietness.

Invited Rosa

I invited Rosa Cordova to lunch on the day after Jim's return from Springdale. It seemed more than likely that the mysterious telephone call was a trick of hers and I couldn't rest contented until I found out.

Rosa agreed to meet me and appeared on the scene promptly. We found a corner table, ordered, sat back comfortably and then I opened fire.

"It's a shame Betty can't be with us," I said carelessly. "But except on Saturdays we never both leave the office at the same time."

"That is right. It is how Jaime and I do. Partners must so make it," replied Rosa with a twinkle in her eye, which told me she felt I'd invited her to lunch to find out how often she lunches with Jim.

"Sometimes I feel as if Betty were a 'boss' instead of a partner," I went on innocently, "and she feels the same about myself—always having to leave telephone numbers behind wherever we go. Speaking of telephone numbers reminds me, I want to call the Inn where Jim stayed last week-end and get accommodations for friends this coming week-end. Is it 123 or 1327? I'm so poor at numbers."

"How should I know?" asked Rosa innocently.

"Jim left his number with you didn't he?" I asked with assumed carelessness. "He said he would, and, anyway, I thought all partners worked on the Betty-Jane system."

"Jaime may have leave the number where he is at the office," smiled Rosa, at the apex of her self-satisfied-the-canary manner. "But me—I am not at the office the week-end. I also am—how to say—call away. So the number I do not know. Is there any reason why you want very much to make yourself sure about this?"

Her eyes met mine challengingly. From the mockery in their depths I knew that she had tried to do what an open book to her. But her motives in the whole thing were more than even a mystery to me. The way she managed to elude me made me practically certain it had been Rosa who telephoned the peremptory message to call Jim. But I didn't know why Rosa should have done this. Nor could I in any way verify my suspicion.

A Deadlock

The luncheon ended in a deadlock, but on an amiable note. Rosa insisted that Betty and I must be her luncheon guests on Saturday, since on that day we made holiday together. The engagement was so far ahead that I couldn't plead a previous one. And when I went back to the office and informed Betty that she was booked she made a little moue and added that she'd try to forget having a hapless busy week that she had a social engagement with our beloved Rosa!

It was a busy week—and a happy one, too. Phoebe got stronger every day. Toward the end of the week she sat up and the doctor announced that she could probably dine with Neal out in the living room on Sunday. She was very lovely, and the glow in her eyes elicited a tribute from Jim one evening on our way home from Neal's apartment.

"Say, Anne, the little sister's beautiful. I've never known how much of a good-looker she was. She's as fit as a daisy, but Neal looks as if he'd gone through a lot."

All Right.

"He'll be all right as soon as she pitters around on her own two feet and he has his playmate back again," I laughed. "They're as much two kiddies as ever, for all they have a baby of their own."

And so the week sped by pleasantly, with every spare moment spent near Phoebe. Her gentleness was no less beautiful than her adoration of Neal and her pride in her baby.

So Saturday came around cheerily enough, in spite of the fact that between Jim and me there was a shadow of something unexplained. Saturday noon Betty came into my office a little shyly and as if there were something she hardly dared ask of me. Then, suddenly, with the air of taking a plunge, she said:

THE HE MAN

SHE FLEW WITH HIM TO THE JUNGLE

By George Agnew Chamberlain

ANDREA did not awake until Trevor withdrew his arm, which was when they were already in sight of their home landing. He helped her ashore and was about to follow when the head-boatman addressed him. A ponderous argument immediately ensued for it appeared that to the boatboys' minds, the Meunge had definitely inherited them. They wished to know what rations they were to draw and where they were to house their wives. In vain did Trevor explain that he himself was bound on a long safari from which he might never return; they were obdurate. For killing their master they were determined on his accepting a transfer of themselves as parallel from the corpse. The parley then dragged as does every palaver with natives and it seemed to Andrea that never was she to have one moment alone with her man.

Discussion Postponed.

When the discussion was finally postponed to a day a week off as a concession to Trevor's promise to give them a meal and two demijohns of wine as recompense for their labor in conjunction with an early start back up the river, they followed him in a body along the path to the canal, thereby earning Andrea's lasting detestation.

By the time she reached the camp she was in no mood to welcome the astonishing sight of three white men calmly taking a siesta in Trevor's most comfortable chairs, their helmets and dolmans tossed aside and their short-sleeved undershirts unbuttoned at the neck. The only thing to be discerned in their favor was that they wore all freshly shaven. It did not cheer her to see that upon catching sight of them Trevor's face cleared.

"Who are the interlopers?" she asked shortly.

His eyebrows went up. "Interlopers, Andrea Fellor?" he asked with a smile. Then his face turned grim. "Will you do what I ask this time?" he inquired.

She stifled the feeling of rebellion that immediately rose in her at this recurrence of his fighting voice. "Yes," she said meekly.

"Please slip quietly to your room, have your tea and bath alone and dress in your smartest khaki outfit, leggins and all. When you have done that, please wait till I come."

Andrea could not resist a single shot. "Yes," she said demurely, "just for a change I'll go and have my tea—and bath—alone."

Trevor ignored the hit. "Good girl," he said his attention already swerving to his snoring guests.

"And you won't tell me who they are?" asked Andrea. "Or don't you know?"

He fixed her with a meaning stare. "Certainly I know," he said, "for I sent for them at considerable expense and trouble. Also I may as well tell you now that one of them at least is a priest of the Church of England."

A flame of color stained Andrea's cheeks and her eyes went suddenly wide. Things were moving and only by a tremendous effort did she catch up with them. "Great Heavens," she murmured. "Something under three pounds, I suppose."

Undoubtedly a hit but also ignored by Trevor whose mind was intent on far more weighty affairs. He shrugged his shoulders and pointed to her but with his chin, an expressive but most reprehensible adoption of native habit. She took the hint, nevertheless, and as she started he said, "Please remember. Please don't show yourself this time, will you?"

The tone of his voice was a great improvement on all that had gone before. She threw him a smile over her shoulder and proceeded to cross to her but on exaggerated tiptoe.

Went to Room.

Trevor did not bother to awake his guests; he went straight to his room and gave himself up to a long-drawn-out orgy of tea, hot bath, sharp razor and clean clothes; to say nothing of the cleansing, anointing and bandaging of his many burns and wounds. When, hours later, he had completed the complex operation to the best of his ability if not entirely to the satisfaction of his vanity he opened his door a crack and looked out. The three guests were awake and reading. They seemed quite comfortable as well as quite at home, a bottle and three glasses having ironically accrued to the table in their midst. It seemed a shame to disturb them at that particular moment and Trevor decided not to. He closed the door, barred it, disconnected the alarm gong and left his room by the covered way.

It is a matter of record that while this same enclosed alley was certainly not over thirty paces in length and could have been traversed in half as many seconds, it took him exactly thirty minutes to get from his end of the passage to Andrea's door — and knock. She opened to him at once and the sight of her made him tremble all the more.

Never before had she seemed so altogether adequate to every demand of life. He looked upon her lovely tumbled hair that was still laughing from its bath; on her deep blue eyes; on such cuddling a devil of mischief; on her adorable nose, always sniffing for trouble; on her red lips, ready to call a spade a spade; and on her hard fists backed by sturdy youth, still more ready to keep him off, and felt the bones of his determination turned to water. She stood with her feet slightly straddled, her hands stuffed in the side pockets of her khaki jacket,—a pose often assumed by professional fighters. He glanced nervously about her room and deciding that he would feel more at home and perhaps more secure in his own, asked her to precede him. She consented and upon arrival made naturally for the couch.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Thanks for Service

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it correct to thank a librarian for service at the library? Are there any circumstances under which it is correct to thank a waiter or waitress for service?

W. E. B.

FREELY express your thanks—you'r, your gratitude and appreciation for any service from any one, no matter how tiny the service or how humble the person doing you the service.

If your thanks are not spontaneous now they will become so with practice. Thank the librarian heartily, sincerely, for her service in showing you another path to the "realms of golden books."

The answer to your last question is: There are no circumstances under which it is not correct to thank a waiter or waitress for service.

At the Theatre

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

(1)—When taking a young lady to a play is it good form to assist her in taking off her coat in the lobby, or wait until she is seated?

(2)—Should the gentleman order for both at the table?

A DAILY READER.

WAIT until she is seated.

(2)—The gentleman should by suggestion take the responsibility in the ordering, but he should consult the lady as to her preferences. The young lady should suggest her order to the companion and not to the waiter. The gentleman repeats it to the waiter.

TERROR OF LIGHTNING

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"MY wife was once shocked by a lightning bolt that struck a tree near the house. Ever since she has been very much afraid of lightning. To tranquillize her I placed large glass castor-cups under the four posts of her bed and removed the bed to the centre of the room. I figured that if the house was struck by lightning the bed would be insulated and anyone lying on it would be safe. If this is right, the knowledge of it might be useful to others who are nervous about lightning."—E. P. Islington, Mass.

THE arrangement described by this correspondent is theoretically a good one. In the days when deep featherbeds were much more common than they are now—in fact I have not seen one in many a year—people in central New York used to say that safety in a thunderstorm could be insured by getting on such a bed, after first drawing it away from the walls.

The fact is that the danger from lightning stroke for a person indoors is statistically so slight that the usefulness of any precaution is mainly confined to the confidence and sense of security that it inspires. Even when a house is struck it is very rare that the inmates suffer anything worse than a nervous shock. But, of course, certain common-sense precautions should be taken, notwithstanding the small likelihood that any harm will come. As a terrorizer lightning is beyond rivalry, and it is well to deprive it as much as possible of the moral effect of its insolence.

Shut the windows, remembering that glass is an insulator. Probably the closing of a window would be just as effective if done only with a wooden shutter, but the mind feels the influence of names, and so lightning is doubly baffled when a glass guard is set against it. In the case of the glass castors, of course the protection is more positive, because the only way in which lightning would be likely to reach a bed in the middle of a room would be through the posts, the dry air in the room being itself an insulating agent.

Keep away from metal pipes and conductors, because they furnish the kind of roads that lightning prefers to follow when it can. Don't sit at open windows or stand in open doorways when a thunderstorm is raging close at hand. The chances that you will be struck even in such places are very slight, but yet they are no doubt considerably larger than they would be if you avoided the exposure.

However, no positive rules can be laid down in this matter. They are all based more or less on probability and speculation. One might suppose that automobiles in a thunderstorm would be in relatively considerable danger, but I know of no statistics showing such to be the fact. Motion may prevent accumulation of a charge. Last summer I rode through two successive mountain storms, and twice the lightning struck within a very few rods of us, so that the air scraped like sandpaper in our ears, but it was trees and not the car that caught the strokes.

TELL THESE AT DINNER

Mrs. Greene was exceedingly pleased with the world in general, and with herself in particular. All her friends were lamenting their inability to find a good cook, and she had been successful in engaging a perfect treasure. No wonder she held her head up proudly as she walked down the select avenue where their convenient family residence was situated.

Her pride received a shock, however, when the cook informed her that she wanted to leave to get married.

"But, Betsy" said Mrs. Greene, when she heard the news, "you have only been here a few days, and you promised you'd stay, you know."

"Yes, mum," replied the cook. "I'm awful sorry, but the gentleman wants the wedding on Saturday."

After a little thought, the mistress said:

"Don't you think you could get him to postpone the wedding for a week or two just while I get a new cook?"

"Well, mum," was the reply. "I'd like to oblige you, but I am not well enough acquainted with the gentleman to ask him to do that."

* * *

The inspector was paying his monthly visit to the village school. He examined the children in reading and general knowledge, and was pleased with the answers.

After the last question had been asked and answered satisfactorily, he rose to his feet and, looking at the upturned faces, remarked genially: "I wish I was a little boy at school again."

He allowed a few moments for this to sink in, and then added: "Do you know why I wish that?"

For a moment there was a silence, and then a childish voice from the back of the room was heard to say: "Because you've forgot all you ever knowed."

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"Big round tears."

Shakespeare calls them in his play, "As You Like It."

"Wishing of all employments is the worst."

Everyone realizes how futile is mere wishing without making an effort to accomplish something, as Edward Young (1684-1765) had observed in "Night Thoughts."

"One falls to the ground in trying to sit on two stools."

Trying to play both sides at the same time is always bad policy as the French writer Rabelais drew us in "Garantua."

"It is better to give than to receive."

The whole-hearted man gets more satisfaction from giving than receiving, we read in the gospel according to St. John xx.

"My stars."

The complete phrase was "My stars and garters," and was used by knights to swear to the truth of a statement. The stars and garters were a sign of knighthood.

"Order is Heaven's first law."

Is one of the epigrammatic sayings that abound in Pope's "Essay on Man."

"Our cause is just, our union is perfect."

In these words the American poet and patriot, John Dickinson (1732-1808), encouraged his fellow countrymen on taking up arms in 1775.

FLAMING YOUTH By WARNER FABIAN

The Great Reform Novel of the Year, Baring Innermost Secrets of Luxury-Loving Class

START THIS BIG, NEW STORY TODAY

Mona Fentriss, young, beautiful and the wife of a consulting engineer, has been told by her physician, Bob Osterhout, who is in love with her, that she has only a short time to live. Mona gives a gay party, telling Pat to go to bed, but the latter borrows a sister's dress, steals downstairs and has "a taste of life." Connie goes to a dance at the club and takes too much punch. She is brought home by Fred Browning, whom she had unceremoniously spent the night. Sel Thorpe gives Pat a "real" kiss. Mona dies and Constance receives a call from Cary Scott, her mother's first admirer. Scott is much taken with Pat. A party is planned for the Dangerfield's, to christen the new swimming pool. A thunder storm puts out the lights and the guests go into the water without clothes. Dee modestly hesitates on the balcony and then—the lights came on, revealing her in a blinding glare. One of the bathers is saved from drowning by Cary Scott. Pat and Cary Scott become interested in each other. Pat returns from school and declares she is "out for trouble" this time. Scott and Pat confess their love and Scott, whose wife is living, says good-by to her.

NOW GO ON WITH THIS ENTHRALLING STORY.

Osterhout broods over his letter to Maria

POSSIBLY his feeling was deeper; the abrupt cure of his infatuation for Connie has never been clear to me. In any case, I miss him. He has brains and charm and, I think, character. Atmosphere, too, which the men of our lot lack. I've had a letter or two from him from California. Through a friend who lives in Paris I have heard about his marriage, too.

His wife is of the leech type, a handsome, heartless, useless, shrewd beast who hates him because he revolted against her taking everything and giving nothing, and who will never, out of sheer spite, give him his divorce. They say he has amused himself widely; yet he retains a reputation for decency even in the more rigid circles of the foreign community there.

"That queer little mystery of Pat's mind-reading of which I wrote you, remains unsolved. I have tried to catch her napping on it; made careless mention of having talked with her before about marrying a man of thirty. But she is not to be trapped; maintains an obstinate reserve. It is too much for me. She is developing fast, but into what I cannot say. Conscious, conquering womanhood, I should say. But she is still so much the simple, wilful child with it all. What I fear for her is the difficulty of adjustment to life when she meets with the severer problems. She is so uneven. Too much background and no foreground; the background of tradition, breeding, lax conveyances (which she recklessly overrides yet always with a sense of what they imply), the divine right of being what she is, a Fentriss, and the lack of what should fill in, training, achievement, discipline, purpose, any real underlying interest in life. Cary Scott was, I believe, giving her something along that line; the more reason for regretting his defection. . . . Pat declares that she will keep a vacant place for him at the family dinner party which she is projecting for next week."

The dinner party was designed by Pat, to convince the Fentrisses, one and all, of her competence to run the house. "Mid-Victorian stuff," Fred Browning called it, but he announced himself as for it, as did also Dee James, while her husband was graciously acquiescent. Ralph Fentriss was humorously obedient to any whim of his youngest daughter's. While Connie was delighted with the idea. Osterhout was of course included, as was Linda Fentriss, bird of passage between winter sports in the Adirondacks and a yachting trip in Florida waters.

The gastronomic part of the dinner was a marked success, aided by a contribution of three bottles of champagne from the private and dwindling cellar of the head of the family. He summed up the verdict after his second glass in a toast proposed and responded to by himself:

"We Fentrisses! We're a damned sight better company for ourselves than most of the people we associate with."

To which satisfying sentiment there was emphatic response, participated in by Robert Osterhout. It struck him, however, that if there were any exception on this occasion it was the second daughter, who alternated between long silences and fits of febrile gaiety quite unlike her usual insouciant good humor. He thought that he caught a look of relief on her face when the men retired to the loggia with their cigars, since the new household tyrant had called against anything but cigarettes in the other parts of the house. The women took possession of the library and Pat established herself beside Dee, who sat on the lounge near the hallopen door leading into the loggia.

"Who's the angel-faced athlete I saw you skating with last Saturday, Mary Della Fentriss James?" was Pat's opening remark.

"Saturday? Where were you?"

"On the bank in my runabout. You were some conspicuous pair! He's as good as you are, almost."

"Were we so good?" said Dee, coolly.

"Meaning that you don't choose to tell."

"Wrong guess. His name is Wellaston."

"Not in my Social Register."

"A few people manage to exist without being."

"Don't be catty, pettish."

"Don't be an imbecile, baba."

"All right. I'm offin him as a subject for airy persiflage. But I will say Wellaston's a wonderful looking bird—for a skating instructor."

Dee laughed. "You didn't expect to get a rise out of me that way, did you?" But there was a harsh quality in her mirth which made Pat suspicious.

"When are you going South?" she asked.

"I don't . . . nt to go till the first. T. Jameson wants to go next week. We'll probably go next week."

"Like that!" commented Pat. "But why be bitter about a jaunt to the Sunny? I wish it was me . . . Have some, what's old Bobs —— ing about?"

Heavy Voice.

The heavy voice of Dr. Osterhout penetrated to them. "All very well for the club. But I wouldn't have the swine in my house."

To which Ralph Fentriss' musical and tolerant tones replied: "Oh, you can't judge a man solely on the basis of his business, can you, now?"

"If his business is that of a panderer, I can."

"Bosh and tush," murmured Pat to Dee. "Who's the accused?"

"Because Peter Waddington's newspaper" put in Browning, "has violated some technical rule of the medical profession—"

"Technical nothing! It isn't technicality. It's ordinary law and order of decency. Look at that column. Abortionists, every one of 'em."

"Oh, myo-my!" whispered Pat, vastly enjoying this. "They're waxing wroth."

"A very useful contribution to the social system," said Jameson. "James is his precise emanation, with a lift obviously intended for humorous."

"I always understood that those fellows didn't 'advertise the people,'" remarked Fred Browning carelessly.

"Whether they do or not," retorted Osterhout, "has nothing to do with the question. That thing"—he paused, his finger against the offending print—"is an invitation to commit murder. But aside from that feature, if you men think that sort of stuff is descent to have lying around a house where there is a young girl ——"

Intimately Revealing the Life of a Modern and Precocious Society Flapper

"Oh, Pat would never think of looking at it," said her father easily. "If she did she wouldn't know what it meant. It's veiled."

"I wouldn't be too sure of that," remarked Browning. "Pat's a wise kid. Not much gets past her, nor any of the girls of her age for that matter."

"You make me sick, all of you," muttered Osterhout. "You wouldn't talk about these things before young girls, yet you'd put the stuff in this form. I'll see that this specimen doesn't befoul anyone's eyes." There was the rustle of a newspaper being violently crumpled. "Where's the damned waste basket?"

"Chuck it in the woodbox and forget it. Have a drink," advised Browning.

Her quick and prurient curiosity stimulated, Pat made instant resolution to retrieve that newspaper and see for herself later how they did these things. Presently the men came in and joined the group in the library. Pat sang for them to her father's accompaniment, also to his delighted surprise, for, with his natural taste he appreciated the genuine quality of the voice. Then there was poker, family limit, meaning fifty cents. At midnight Dee called for a round of rondos, declaring that she was tired out. She had previously announced her intention of spending the night at the Knoll, as James was taking an early morning train to attend a sale at which he expected to pick up some polo ponies.

Pat Went Upstairs.

Pat, going upstairs last, as befitted the chatelaine, heard Dee moving about in the bathroom, and went to her own room to wait. When all was quiet she slipped on a dressing gown and tiptoed downstairs to rifle the woodbox of its denounced print. There was a single light on in the loggia. Astonished, Pat crept to a viewpoint and peeped in.

Dee with an intent and haunted face, was smoothing out the newspaper upon her knee.

Before Pat was fully awake next morning Pat had come to a daring resolution. To prepare her way she got up, went to the loggia, and looked in the wood-box. No newspaper was there. The maids had not yet made their rounds; therefore Dee must have taken it up with her. Dee did not appear at breakfast, but at ten o'clock she came down. Her face was waxy and apathetic, her lids lady assumed to have had something of his poise. Sorely compassionate and thrilling to the sense of mature and adventurous feelings Pat seized upon the first chance of speaking to her alone.

"Dee, did you take a newspaper from the wood-box?"

Dee's expression was inscrutable. "Yes."

"The one Bobs was grouching about? I wanted to see it."

"You!" The exclamation was pregnant with astonishment and dismay. It crystallized Pat's suspicion as to Dee's motive in taking the paper. The older woman rose slowly, walked across the room and stared down into the thoughtful face of the younger. "What do you want that for?"

"Just curiosity."

"Bobs is a nut," said Dee forlornly. "There's nothing in that paper. I tore it up."

"Oh, are you that way?"

"None of your business."

Con Told Her.

"Con met me when she was"

"Cute a cow."

"She's rather pink. I should think you'd be."

"Oh, would you?" Dee's self-control broke. Her face worked spasmodically. "I'd kill myself first."

The laidinage faded from Pat's lips. "That doesn't sound like you, Dee. I'd think you'd be a sport about it anyway."

"But I can't have a baby."

"Rats! You're as strong as an ox."

"It isn't that. I'm not afraid that way."

"What else is there to be afraid of?"

"It isn't fear. It's—disgust."

"Disgust!" Pat flushed. "I don't get you."

"Pat, listen to me," burst out the sister, her face working, as over the other in a nervous spasm. "Whatever you do, when the time comes keep your mouth it may seem the thing to do at the time, don't, don't, don't marry a man you aren't in love with. It's a thing to make you sick of yourself every day of your life."

"Dee!"

"It is. I'll never talk to you like this again. But I tell you now; do anything, take any chance but that."

Pat's voice was hushed as she asked: "Do you hate Jimmie—James so much?"

"Not as much as I hate myself. But I've got cause against him. He hasn't been to his bungalow. He hasn't been on the level."

Pat's eyes widened. "You'll never make me believe that this correct and careful T. Jameson has been straying off the reservation."

"I wish you could be would. It isn't that. It's worse—far more. If I could try to be spilling this to you, Pat."

"Oh, go ahead! Get it off your chest."

LOVE AND MARRIAGE

—By ELINOR GLYN—

IF one brings up a girl to understand the laws of cause and effect, when she becomes twelve years old she will have acquired, with careful training, a common-sense point of view upon every subject because until a child is twelve years old the subconscious mind can be saturated with whatever ideas those in charge of the child wish to inculcate. The first principle to teach which embraces all the others is self-respect.

Elinor Glyn

Self-respect is the consciousness of possessing an immortal soul which should never be tarnished by low thoughts and actions, however they can be disguised before the world. Self-respect is the essence of what a Rochefoucauld describes perfect valor as being. He says, "Perfect valor is to do without witness that which one is capable of doing before all the world."

I should explain to my daughter, in teaching self-respect, the quite natural instincts which the Almighty has thought fit to endow human beings with for the carrying out of His scheme for the continuation of the species. I should explain that while it is quite natural for people to have those instincts, the difference between man and animal is that man has reason and can control his impulses and make them obey him and not allow them to rule him. So I should teach the greatest self-control with full knowledge.

I would not give orders without explanation, which always arouses curiosity. I should explain that unless the self-respect is continually active, nature is so strong that great follies can be committed which bring inevitable degradation and suffering.

I should teach the girl that her own purity is something to take pride in and cherish, so that when she really loves she can bestow a great gift upon the man she takes for a husband. And if her self-respect has been trained thoroughly—and you appeal to it—you can rest assured that she will be quite safe.

FOXY GRANDPA STORY

Nellie's Puppies Didn't Know Her

NELLIE, my beautiful Scotch collie, walked slowly over to me and dropped at my feet panting, with the water dripping off her tongue. You know, that's the way dogs perspire. It was such a hot Summer day that even I was dripping with perspiration.

"You poor thing," I said, patting her. "It's such a shame you have to wear that big, heavy, fur coat of yours and you're such a busy dog these days, with your four babies to take care of."

Nellie turned her soft eyes on me and wagged her tail.

© by International Feature Service Inc

Bobby, who was watching us, said:

"Well, I certainly feel cooler since I had my hair cut."

"That's an idea," I exclaimed.

"What, Foxy Grandpa?"

"This very morning I'm going to take Nellie to town and have her clipped."

"Oh, she'll feel fine. Foxy Grandpa! She'll feel just like I did when I took off my heavy underwear."

So we all hopped in the automobile and drove to town, because I knew Nellie couldn't be away from her babies very long.

We went to the clipper's, and in no time the man shaved off Nellie's heavy coat and there she stood looking like a small lion.

When the job was finished, how Nellie did bark and jump around for joy! She seemed to be saying:

"Thank you, Foxy Grandpa, I feel like a different dog!"

I cranked up my car, Nellie and Bobby jumped in and home we drove. Every once in a while Nellie would reach over and lick my cheek, she was so grateful and felt so cool and comfortable.

We drove into the garage and before I could turn off the engine Nellie—faithful mother that she is—made one leap out of the door and over to the kennels to see if her babies were all right.

I shut the door of the garage and started to the house when I stopped because I heard the most awful howling, which certainly came from Nellie's puppies.

"What the meaning of that?" I asked Bobby. "Didn't Nellie go over to her babies?"

"She surely did, Foxy Grandpa. She didn't even stop to get a drink of water."

"Well, for pity's sake, let's go over and find out what the trouble is."

Nellie was indeed having her troubles. And what was the reason? I wonder if you can guess.

Nellie's children didn't know their mother without her furry coat! When she tried to fondle them, they ran to the corner and climbed all over each other crying.

I understood it all in a glance, so I took the frightened little babies and held them right up close to Nellie's face and then she licked them and comforted them until they finally cuddled up close to her and went to sleep.

I had to laugh, but I tell you for a few moment it wasn't a laughing matter for Nellie and her family.

FURNITURE IN HOME

—By Marian Moore—

LOVELY old oak with a natural finish which has turned a silver color, composes this china cabinet which is a precious heirloom in one home. It looks its best against a plain plastered wall, and so the room has been finished with exactly those walls to form a setting for the family pet. Blue willow-ware china, equally precious, is stowed away behind the glazed doors.

Useful Oak Dresser.

Note the three drawers for silver and the three deep drawers for linen, and you can see why it was popular in the olden days. Fortunately we can get excellent reproductions of these old-time pieces, so we are not handicapped because we lacked a furniture collecting forefather. But let us not call them all "originals"—it's no disgrace to have replicas if you pick good originals to copy. That holds good in many other things in life, just as much as in home furnishings.

SPAGHETTI RECIPES

New England housewives are now given a chance to win six packages of Mueller's delicious spaghetti by sending in recipes for the best way of cooking appetizing dishes of the same. For each recipe printed here six packages will be sent. Address Spaghetti Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, 8, Mass.

Italian Spaghetti

Fry a few slices of bacon, a small onion and cut in small pieces and fry the careful not to burn), ½ pound of bottom of round steak cut extra thin, grate it all over with Italian cheese, a small piece of garlic, a sprinkle of pepper and salt. Now roll your steak just like a jelly roll and tie with a piece of string. Fry in the pork fat till brown. Put ½ can of conserve and 1 small can of tomatoes, 1 cup of water all in one pan together and cook slowly for 2 hours. This will give you a delicious gravy. Boil 1 package of Mueller's spaghetti without breaking in salt water until tender, drain off water, pour this gravy all over it and grate Italian cheese on top.

MRS. LOUISE BOURGESS.

No. 74 Eutaw street, East Boston, Mass.

Spaghetti Italian Style

Boil 2 quarts of water, add 1 package of Mueller's spaghetti, boil for fifteen minutes or more, until tender, not too soft. While the spaghetti is boiling take a frying pan and fry ½ pound of sausage meat or hamburg steak in olive oil or Mazola. To this add 1 small onion grated, small amount of chopped celery, 6 or 7 cloves, pepper and salt. Then take 2 tablespoonfuls of tomato sauce and thin down in a cup of boiling water. Add enough water to thin down. Cook in frying pan together with meat, etc., until it begins to thicken slightly. Drain water out of spaghetti, leave dry, add ingredients and mix thoroughly until spaghetti is colored. Serve hot. J. J. COSIMINI.

"Who do you take me for?"

Right.

"Who" is incorrect. "Whom do you take me for?" is correct. The relative pronoun is governed by the preposition "for," and should be in the objective case.

Wrong.

"Inquiry" pronounced with accent on first syllable.

Right.

It is pronounced in-kwir "i" as in "white"—se, with the accent on "quir."

Wrong.

"I cant go no farther"

Right.

This sentence has two negatives, making its true sense, "I can go farther," which is not the speaker's meaning. The sentence should read, "I can go no farther," or "I can't go farther."

Wrong.

"It's no use to argue with him."

Right.

"It's of no use to argue with him."

Wrong.

"You was lucky to get away as you did."

Right.

The sentence should read, "You were lucky," etc.

Wrong.

"Radish" pronounced "redish."

Right.

"Radish" is pronounced rad ("a" as in "fat")dish.

Wrong.

Pronouncing "laugh" with "a" as in "cat."

Right.

"Laugh" is pronounced "laff," with a broad "a" as in "father."

Wrong.

"It aggravates me so I could hit him."

Right.

"Aggravates" is incorrectly used for "irritates," "exasperates," or "annoys." "Aggravate" means to make worse, increase or intensify.

Wrong.

"It ain't true."

Right.

"Ain't" is a contraction of "am not" or "are not." It is also inelegant and vulgar. The sentence should read, "It isn't true."

BITS OF WISDOM

The humble suffer continually from the folly of the great.

* * *

To believe a business impossible is the way to make it so.

* * *

It is vain to learn wisdom and yet to live foolishly.

WHEN DID IT HAPPEN?

1—When was Verdi's delightful opera, "Rigoletto," first produced?

2—When did Portugal become a republic?

3—When was Mt. McKinley set aside for a national park?

4—When did the French ocean liner La Bourgogne founder at sea after being rammed by a sailing vessel?

5—When was President Andrew Jackson shot at by a would-be assassin in Washington?

ANSWERS

To yesterday's questions

1—The Lick Observatory was erected in California in 1888-1885.

2—Porto Rico was discovered by Columbus in 1492.

3—The title of "Defender of Faith" was conferred on Henry VIII. of England by Pope Leo in 1521.

4 — Charles Dickens' novel "Bleak House" was published 1852-53.

5—The noted Edinburgh Review was founded in 1802.

JIGGS KICKED OUT OF DINTY'S

WHEN George McManus, the cartoonist creator of "Bringing Up Father," returned to these shores from a tour of Ireland last Summer he brought with him an Irish terrier puppy of saturnine countenance and patrician lineage which he presented to Mrs. Jimmy Murphy, wife of Jimmy Murphy, whose justly celebrated cartoon "Toots and Casper," is the laugh of two continents, including California, which produced Murphy and gave him to native art.

In the Irish stud book Mrs. Murphy's pup is registered as Tyrone Top o' the Morning, out of Merrivale Mavourneen, by Champion Tyrone Tetrarch, but in the Murphy household he fetches and carries, smokes a clay pipe, and lies down and plays dead, under the simple name of Jiggs. He was so named fifteen minutes after Mr. McManus brought him to Murphy's in a dog basket and just after he had knocked over the gold fish tank, entered the sanctuary of the best sofa pillow after he bit his initials into the leg of the new grand piano.

But he has now grown into dignified maturity and is considered by competent judges to have the best taxicab manners of any canine in America's largest city.

A few days ago Mrs. Murphy had an engagement to meet her husband and Mr. and Mrs. McManus at Jam-s—that is to say Dinty's—Moore's restaurant, at Forty-sixth street. Jiggs' appetite for corned beef and cabbage is insatiable and his behavior at table impeccable in any company, so she took him along, being certain that his name and obviously Irish derivation would not only win him prompt admission to Moore's but guarantee him the best in the house.

In this she reckoned without the fact that there are waiters in New York City who will remain waiters for the term of their natural lives. The particular waiter she encountered at Moore's was one of them. Neither her husband nor the McManuses had arrived when she went into the restaurant and established herself at a table. Moore himself, as happened, was temporarily out of the place. The waiter whose section of the dining room included the table promptly ordered her to remove Jiggs or failing that, Jiggs and herself likewise.

"This place," he said, "is a famous restaurant and not the Westminster Kennel Club. Don't gimme no argument, lady—take that dog to some place else."

In vain she told him who her husband was, who George McManus was, who she was, and who Jiggs was. It appeared that the waiter knew nothing of American art, not in front of any art.

So Mrs. Murphy went out.

But at the first corner she encountered Mr. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. McManus and proprietor James for "Dinty") Moore in person, all on their way in and expecting to find her there. And since there does exist such a thing as a restaurant proprietor with sufficient audacity to overrule his own waiters, the incomparable dog Jiggs was brought back with the rest of the party and at Moore's direction given a chair at the table and all the corned beef and cabbage he could eat.

No, Moore did not fire the waiter. The latter resigned on the spot of his own volition, saying as he took off his apron that New York was clearly going to the dogs and that he was on his way back to the great open spaces of Ireland where men were men.

According to Directions

The down-at-heel tramp knocked at the back door, and on it being opened by the lady of the house he said, in a whining voice:

"Please, kind lady, I'm a sick man. The doctor gave me this medicine, but I must have something to take with it."

The lady was good-hearted, and was much touched on hearing this, and immediately expressed her readiness to help.

"Poor fellow," she said. "Do you want a spoon and a glass of water?"

"Well, mum," answered the tramp, "I wouldn't trouble you, but it says on the bottle, 'To be taken after meals.' Have you got a meal handy?"

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

THE government has posted notices everywhere that whenever a citizen needs help he should call a postman. This is all right, but it doesn't mean he's supposed to make your beds or wash the dishes.

HE should only be called in cases of emergency such as keeping your wife from choking you to death or taking your last dime out of the baby's mouth.

THE government issued this order just to show that postmen are useful for something else besides bringing bills to your house.

ONE guy took advantage of this order and wanted the postman to break in a new pair of shoes for him.

THE mailman wore the shoes two weeks and then this bird wanted to charge him seven dollars for wearing them out.

HE claimed the postman got his shoes all out of shape, and wanted to sue the government.

BUT the mailman came right back and demanded ninety-five cents that he had spent for corn plasters.

ONE guy read this new order and called up the post office. He said, "send me down a mailman right away I want him to help me change a tire."

THEN some woman telephoned for a postman to come out to the house as soon as posible and walk the floor with her baby.

SHE said the last time she phoned for one he took so long to come that by the time he got there the baby was grown.

IF a postman did everything that was expected of him he'd get up so early in the morning that he'd have to go to work with a lantern.

ONE carrier used to get home so late at night that his wife thought she had married a night watchman.

HE never gets time to do anything around the house at all. But that's all right, his wife gets the postman on their route to do it.

SOME housewives expect the postman to go to the butcher shop or grocery store for them and use his own money.

OF course, they intend to pay for it sooner or later, and as a rule it's generally later.

BUT in the meantime they want to open an account with him.

IT'S getting so that a postman has to deliver letters like a kid delivers comic valentines. Ring the doorbell and run.

FOR years the postmen have been whistling for the citizens. Now the citizens are whistling for the postmen.

ONCE OVERS

(Copyright, 1923, International Feature Service, Inc.)

DO NOT BE AFRAID TO SAY THE EXPENSE IS TOO GREAT.

If something is proposed by a member of your crowd, and it is too expensive for you, do not be afraid to say so.

You might better say it is too much for your purse, rather than go in debt for something beyond your income limit.

Men who really do have money do not hesitate to complain of expenses; and, at that, have many times more money than you have.

The monied man is not backward in saying what he thinks in financial matters, and it is his caution which has put him ahead in money matters.

If he had spent as much money relatively as you have he would not be possessor of the big bank account and the high standing in business circles.

Of course, it is fine to associate with the persons whom you enjoy.

To do the things that others do, especially when the company is congenial, is much to be desired but if you must twist and turn and squeeze and constantly worry to do as your friends do, is the enjoyment worth it?

You are going fast toward that time when an old man will demand a living of you, and at your present rate that old man—yourself—will be poverty stricken.

It Seems That—

Paradoxical as it may sound some folks will never be able to find themselves because they're too self-seeking.

Camera Description Brought Here by Aeroplane

A MOMENT LATER—This scene in the ninth round does not reveal much action, but "a moment later" Dempsey hooked a vicious left to the jaw that rocked the St. Paul gamecock. The blow dazed Gibbons, and for the remainder of the round he fought on the defensive. Dempsey, enraged at his inability to drop his lighter antagonist, bore in on his man in this round and did some forceful execution, but not much damage.

SAVED BY CLINCHES—In the tenth round Gibbons, now firmly resolved that he was going to stick the distance, clinched repeatedly in order to conserve his strength. Ofttimes Tom darted in with a jab, and whenever he missed he ducked inside Dempsey's guard. In this instance, however, Dempsey swung a short left as Gibbons came in, and the blow caught Tom behind the ear.

TOO MUCH ELBOW—The champion worked into close quarters in the thirteenth round and tried to bombard the challenger's stomach. A wicked right drive was blocked, however. Elbows McFadden never had anything on Gibbons.

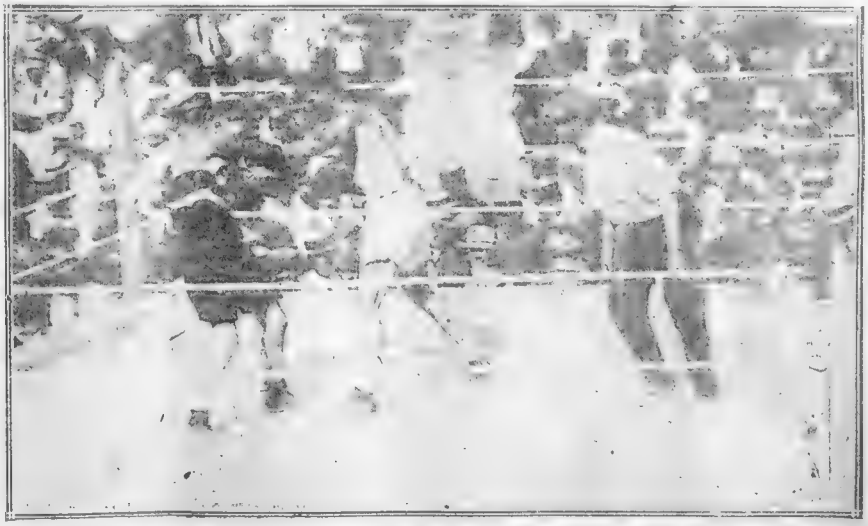
TOM DEAD TIRED—Gibbons was a pretty sick young man as the photographer snapped his c[illegible] here. The champion tried his hardest to put over a knockout blow in this final spasm, but Tom managed to weather the storm by rocking and sliding with every lead that Jack offered.



THE FINAL BELL—Just before the timekeeper pulled the string that wound up the fight Dempsey stabbed Gibbons on the jaw with a left hook. He was shaken by the blow and never listened to sweeter music than when he heard the gong.

REVEAL THREAT TO GERMANY BY BELGIUM

Berlin, July 7—The Vossische Zeitung reports the French have occupied the Duisburg branch of the Reichsbank and seized about 10,000,000 marks.

Paris, July 7 (6P)—Belgium has made what is characterized as a veiled threat to withdraw her non-inter from Berlin unless Germany publicly disavows the Duisburg bombing and other violence in the Ruhr. The delivery to Berlin by the Belgian minister of such a threat was confirmed in French official quarters today.

The French government, in view of the close accord with Belgium, is deemed certain to support the Belgian attitude.

Parliament now stands behind Premier Poincare in declaring the Papal Reparations letter can have no effect on France's decision to stay in the Ruhr until Germany pays.

The Senate's announcement of the Premier's indirect slap at the Vatican's commentary was followed last evening by a similar expression of approval from the Chamber of Deputies which, 288 to 160, agreed that the government would never admit Papal interference in other domestic or foreign policies.

LORD ASTOR DECLARES WAR ON BRITISH RUM BARONS

London, July 7 (U.S.S.S.)—Lord Astor has declared war on the opium traffic in England which he charges is responsible for much of the anti-American propaganda here.

"Ever since the United States undertook its great experiment (prohibition), the licensed trade in this country has been carrying on anti-American propaganda," Lord Astor said.

"The drink trade is also trying to turn the wide rift of public life," he asserted.

"I resigned for I have been obliged to behold the machinations of trade," he declared, "of do not want any trade to have such a hold on politics as is held by the drink trade."

D. A. R. PROTESTS RENAMING SQUARE FOR WAR HERO

A petition protesting against the naming of the square at Broadway and Main street, Somerville, after Charles E. Ryan, dead war hero, has been sent to Mayor John M. Webster of Somerville by the Anne Adams Tufts chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The square was previously known as Paul Revere square. The petition, which was signed by every member of the chapter, is the latest of more than 200 protests which have been made to the mayor since the bill providing for the naming of the square was passed a week ago.

Private Ryan was killed in action in the Belleau Wood, July 18, 1918.

15,000,000 MALARIA CASES LISTED IN RUSSIAN PLAGUE

London, July 7 (U.S.S.S.)—An epidemic of malaria is sweeping through Russia and more than 15,000,000 cases have been reported this year, according to a Moscow dispatch to the Express.

The epidemic has been particularly deadly in the cities, and industry has been seriously crippled, the dispatch said.

Popular Dinner Party Given by Potters at 'Holme Lea,' Betty Alden Reports

By BETTY ALDEN

THE William C. Potters, who are now established for the season at Southampton, L. I., gave a dinner party the other night at their villa, known as "Holme Lea."

It was last Spring that Rose Lea Saltonstall, daughter of Mrs. Philip L. Saltonstall of Boston, became the bride of Mr. Potter. The wedding, a very simple affair, was solemnized at the Dedham home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Weld (Katherine Saltonstall).

Following a wedding journey to the South, Mr. and Mrs. Potter returned to New York to Mr. Potter's residence, where the one-time Rose Saltonstall had been engaged in business for some time.

Last Summer Mrs. Potter was a frequent visitor of her mother's at the latter's Summer place at West Chop on the North Shore.

ONE of the best riders of the younger set is Miss Theodora Ayer, daughter of the Charles P. Ayers of Boston and Hamilton. Though Miss Ayer is still a sub-deb, she has proved her skill as an equestrienne in numerous horse shows. "Juniper Ridge," the Hamilton country place of the Ayers, is usually the scene of gay parties for the Summer colonists along the shore, where Miss Ayer is a prominent member of the Myopia Hunt Club.

During the past Winter Theodora Ayer has been attending a boarding school in the South. Next season, I believe, she is to be presented to society. She has a younger sister, Miss Anne B. Ayer.

MISS THEODORA AYER

Miss Theodora Ayer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Ayer of Boston and Hamilton, is one of the keenest young sportswomen along the Shore.

LITTLE Edward Motley Welds, who have a host of connections in Boston, have leased for another Winter the New York residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Burden at No. 35 East Forty-ninth street. Mr. Weld retains his membership in the Somerset Club here, while Mrs. Weld (Sarah L. King) belongs to the Chilton Club.

MRS. S. Parkman Shaw of Boston was in the fashionable crowd of onlookers who watched the picturesque pageant and parade held in Lenox on the Fourth.

There were seventy floats in the parade, as well as colonial barouches, a smart English turnout of twenty years ago, a richly painted Babylonian chariot, a beautifully decorated sedan chair with attendants in colonial costumes, a Noah's Ark full of all kinds of animals, a Lenox sleigh of 1770, a stage coach of 1800, to say nothing of an Indian chief leading his tribe of Stockbridge Indians.

Many society folk in the Berkshires took part in the affair, which never fails to draw a large throng to Lenox.

MR. AND MRS. RONALD T. LYMAN of Beacon street have taken the Amory A. Lawrence place at Beverly Cove for the Summer. Last year the Lymans occupied the Ahl cottage, Pride's Crossing.

Church Notes

This Summer $3,000 will be spent by the Episcopal City Mission, No. 1 day school is caring for the Mothers' Rest, and the camp for boys and girls, both at Oak Island, Revere, and children's playgrounds in different localities in this city. Under this humanitarian work Mrs. E. S. Rousmaniere, wife of Ivan Rousmaniere has given $500.

* * *

The Episcopal Church of Boston will have 200 boys in camp this Summer at Groton Camp, New-found Lake, New Hampshire. Brent-wood Camp, Peterboro, N. H., and Camp Na-E-Ca at Revere Beach. F. W. Lindois, Jr., is counsellor of the enterprise.

* * *

Rev. Charles W. Findlay, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Fall River, has accepted a call to St. Paul's Church, Malden. Rev. P. H. Ogilby, rector of Church of the Good Shepherd, Allerton, has accepted a call to Church of Our Saviour, Longwood, made vacant by the resignation of Rev. H. K. Sherrill who became rector of Trinity Church, Copley Square.

* * *

More than 500 students will attend the exercises of Star Island, July 21-28, during student week with the opening address by Miss Zona Gale Conlin, executive secretary of the Unitarian Campaign for Young People.

* * *

Rev. Dr. Edward D. Eaton of Wellesley asked for the third time to take charge of Beloit College, and decided to the appeal.

* * *

The National Council of Congregational Churches in the United States will be held in Springfield, October 16-23.

* * *

Miss Dorothy Whittington will take charge of the vacation Bible school at First Baptist Church, Charlestown. Miss Ruth Calvin will take the work of the school at Ruggles Street Baptist Church. Both are from Akron, Ohio.

FEW IMPORTANT REALTY DEALS IN WEEK

The occurrence of the holiday had a retarding effect upon real estate sales during the week. Important transactions consummated reported have been few in number. The demand for dwellings continues strong, with desirable properties becoming scarcer. As a result more interest is being manifested by prospective home owners in the many developments upon which work is under way in all of the principal suburbs.

Some of the transactions completed during the week not previously reported, include:

BACK BAY APARTMENTS.

The four-story brick apartment house at No. 55 Westland avenue, next to the Hemenway Hotel, has been sold by James Curr to Francesco Pellgrino, who purchased for investment. The property has an assessed valuation of $26,000, of which $6,900 is on the land. The transaction was negotiated to Herald M. Cronin of the office of J. A. Cronin.

SUBURBAN TRANSACTIONS.

Edward F. Cassell has sold to Therese Lavit the property at No. 211-215-217 South street, Jamaica Plain, comprising three three-family brick houses and 8,749 square feet of land. The total assessed valuation is $20,300.

Mr. Cassell has sold to C. Cotter, Jr., the cottage located at No. 815 Nantasket avenue, Kenberma, as seased for a total of $5,000, and has purchased from C. Cotter, Jr., a three family house and 1,847 square feet of land at No. 32 West Cottage street, Dorchester, assessed for $8,500.

The four single houses with 11,800 square feet of land, at Nos. 49-51 Franklin street, Brighton, have been purchased by Mr. Cassell from Harris Swartz. This property has a city valuation of $13,000.

DORCHESTER TRANSFER.

Papers have been recorded in the transfer of title of a brick block at Nos. 87-99 Lawrence avenue, corner of Columbia Park, Dorchester, from Sarah Kaiser to Celia Fisher. There is a land area of 13,042 square feet of land, taxed for $5,200. The total assessed value is $60,000.

SALES IN SUBURBS

The property at No. 26 Mill street, Arlington, has been purchased by the Chas. G. Clapp Company from Mable S. Libby. The same company has sold to Annie and Nicholas O'Brien property at No. 23 Mill street, Arlington.

Another Arlington property sold by the Chas. G. Clapp Company comprised a two and one-half story frame house and 2,000 square feet of land at No. 31 Swan street, Arlington. Mary L. and Stephen H. Ambuhack were the purchasers.

A residential property on Mill street, Arlington Center, has been sold by Chas. G. Clapp Company to James E. and Michael A. McNulty, who will occupy.

W. J. Rogers has transferred to Owen McDonald, who will occupy, a dwelling house with land on Linden street, Everett.

O. J. and Adelaide Black have purchased a frame property with 5,800 square feet of land on Cushing street, Medford. Clara Haley was the grantor.

Louisa W. Phoebe S. and Lettie Chase have bought from George Darling his property at No. 64 Watterson avenue, Wollaston.

John C. Cameron has sold to Daniel W. McKinnon a dwelling house with land in Prince street, Jamaica Plain.

Watson Logan has bought from M. R. Nelson his frame property with 3,800 square feet of land in Haskel avenue, Everett.

A dwelling with land on Harding street, West Newton, has been sold by Lizzie M. Chase to Bessie Lontte, who purchased for occupancy.

All of the above transactions were negotiated by the Chas G. Clapp Company.

NAMESTERS!

What can you do with your name?

Can you make a funny sentence out of it? Or a wise sentence? Or a snappy one? Or a clangy one? Or any kind of a sentence?

The Boston American offers a dollar to any one who sends in a bright or unusual sentence made up of the first letters of either your FIRST, middle or LAST name.

Every one printed gets a dollar. Each week a prize of $5 will be given to the best one used that week.

Everybody in Boston takes a shot at this game. It's plenty of fun trying to figure out the different sentences you can make in this way. And if you get one printed it means a dollar, or $5 if it is the best one printed during the week.

Send as many as you like. Make up sentences from your first, middle or last name. Nobody is barred.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

The Boston American will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment in My Life." Address Embarrassing Moments, Boston American.

The most embarrassing moment I can ever remember came about two weeks ago. It was in church. We were talking to the priest, when it came time to go, and the priest went to get his coat and hat, and I found, to my embarrassment, that I had been sitting on his hat all evening, and it was all crushed. THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

The Boston American will pay $1 for "Best Joke" published. Address "Best Joke," Boston American.

A man wishing to break a bill stepped into a drug store and purchased five cents' worth of lozenges, tending a five-dollar bill to the clerk. The clerk received the bill with a smile on his face and proceeded to give in return the change in silver, saying at the same time, "I am sorry, but this is all the change I have. I hope you don't mind." "Not in the least," replied the man, carefully counting nine dollars and ninety-five cents.

A RHYMING OPTIMIST

A Prescription

WHEN I've been sittin' round indoors an' idlin' all day long, I'm apt to get a crazy hunch the world is goin' wrong; I get to thinkin' 'bout the men with better luck than me, the chaps who've always struck it rich an' lived in luxury, the boy who keeps a limousine an' owns a splendid yacht, an' saunters round the golfing green all day, as like as not. I think about the Wall Street bunch that never know a care, an' figure out how fine it is to be a millionaire. My house keeps lookin' poorer, then an' means all the time, an' I'm an old, defected chap who's way beyond his prime. But when I get about this far, old Common-Sense comes by, an' stops me in the middle of a long an' windy sigh. "What's this?" cries she, "get up, get out, go hit the open road, an' don't you dare to come back here with this ungodly load!" With protest in my heart, I go; I'd rather sit an' pine an' think about the other chaps who've done so dog-goned fine. But when I've walked a little while I chance to note the sky, so fair, so blue its boundless arch where snowy cloud ships lie. An' then I hear a red-bird's note, a flute-like sound an' sweet, an' all at once I'm mighty sure this old world can't be bust! I've lost the heavy load of care that weighted me but now, I hear a hint of mirthful sound in every rustling bough. An' so I say to chaps like me, "When feelin' sort of blue, get out an' try old Nature's cure, you'll soon be good as new."

TELL THESE AT DINNER

In his heart the old gentleman did not object to the young man as a son-in-law, but he liked to raise objections first, and then reach an agreement as though conferring a favor. When the young man called he was ready for him.

"So," he interrupted, fiercely, before the suitor had uttered half a dozen words, "you want me to let you marry my daughter!"

The young man replied, coolly, "I didn't say so, did I?"

The other gasped. "But you were going to say so!"

"Who told you I was?" inquired the applicant, seeing his advantage.

"But you want me to let you marry her, don't you?"

"No."

"Then what the deuce do you want?"

"I want you to give your consent," replied the youth, pleasantly. "I am going to marry her, anyhow, but we thought your consent wouldn't be a bad thing to have as a start."

It took the other a minute to realize the situation. When he did he put out his hand.

"Shake hands, my boy," he said. "I've been looking for a son-in-law with pluck, and you'll do."

* * *

"Oh, doctor," cried a wild-eyed man. "I am dreadfully afflicted! The ghosts of my departed relatives come and perch on the tops of the fence posts all around my yard when dusk is falling. I am look out into the gloaming my evening and see a couple of dozen spooks sitting on the top of the posts, waiting, waiting, waiting. What shall I do?" "Sharpen the tops of the posts," replied the doctor.

Bobbie and His Pa

By Wm. F. Kirk

I WAS reading a old novel last nite, sed Ma to Pa when we was having brekfust, it todld how a lot of brite peopul used to set in a parlor wich they called a Salon, sed Ma. There they wud talk about grate a-mooed things, Ma sed. Peopul seems to be differnt now, sed Ma.

Most of the Salons has closed up lattly, sed Pa. They hasent been abel to git by since the Volsted Act, sed Pa.

Deer me, sed Ma, how stupid of you to compare Salons with saloons, sed Ma. There is all the differns between a Salon & a saloon, sed Ma. I shud think so, sed Ma. A Salon was a bautiful parlor in the hoam of such rich patrons of art & letters as Madam de Stale, sed Ma, wile a saloon was a hanging out place for selfish husbands with in-growing thurots, sed Ma. Thank heving, sed Ma, they are gone forever, sed Ma.

Times has changed a heep since them old days of art & letters, sed Pa. Peopul nowadays goes to movies or out in thare cars, & if a lady was to give a literatury party nowadays, sed Pa, the only writer thare wud be a docktor writing per-skrip-sums, sed Pa. That is a hard word to spell, but Pa sed it like that.

I wonder if it is beckaus peopul in them days was moar brainey, sed Ma.

No, sed Pa, it wasent that, beckaus such men as nyssell is preos enuff, sed Pa, that the world aint going back in a mentil way, sed Pa. It is jest that peopul nowadays has so many differnt selves in which to spend thare time, & thay doant reed the grate books of them old masters like thay used to, sed Pa. It is too bad, too, Pa sed. Even the stuff I write isent red as much as it uster be, sed Pa.

What do you supposa the result of all this will be? sed Ma. Is the wurld going to cum to a end sum of these days, or git burned up beckaus it is so wicked?

No danger of that, sed Pa. This wurld never was burned up & it never will be burned up. In a few bilyun yeers, maybe, sed Pa, it will beecum too cold to live on, sed Pa, but you & I won't have to worry about that, sed Pa. We will be in heven then, sed Pa, you & I & little Bobbie.

I feel quite sure that I shall see littel Bobbie thare, sed Ma, but I doant feel so hopefulatick about you, sed Ma.

I doant know what Ma means about hopfulatick, but I know if Pa aint going to be ware I am going to be after I die then I aint going to be thare. I will not, 'cause it is past my bed time. I will come with a pome.

I do not know ware I will go When I die, but this erth below But sumwhere always seems to say That everything will be O. K.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

Schwab is not trying to get control of Willys-Overland. He is not reaching out for control of any other automobile company. Every week some automobile counter is brought to his door step, but Mr. Schwab declines to father them.

It was not part of the steel master's ambition to become a towering figure in the automobile industry. As a matter of fact, he was drawn into it at a time when he had definitely set his mind upon, not increasing, but reducing his personal business load. How did he come to assume direction of Stutz? Here is the truth:

Allan Ryan and Mr. Schwab had been for friends. When the former was getting into financial difficulties he, like a great many other folks, turned to the good-natured Schwab for assistance. To enable young Ryan to raise some money, Mr. Schwab turned over to him a block of marketable securities, and accepted from Ryan a rather large holding of Stutz stock. When the Stutz venture came, several of Mr. Schwab's banking and other friends besought him to invest and direct affairs with a view of preventing a total loss. Against his own inclination, Schwab agreed.

Having once taken hold, he became determined to make a success of the concern. Anything and everything Schwab has done since automobile-wise has been prompted solely by the desire to help Stutz. Anything and everything not coming within the scope of this one idea has been turned down by Mr. Schwab, and he has no intention of entering upon any different course now or in the future.

* * *

At last New York authorities, prodded by the New York American, are going after swindlers who promote fake projects and sell worthless stock. The first to lose shows that one such venture —chartered of course in Delaware, as are most thieving schemes—has palmed off $300,000 of stock on poor people and has only $25,000 of assets, with no factory or plant or other property to show for the spending of all this money.

There have been turned loose in America during recent years more peddlers of stocks of queerer merit than there are salesmen in any legitimate line of business. Where some question the propriety of thus peddling stock, the gift salesman is likely to reply, "Why, second-as is doing it. That is how he is raising his capital, and is he not all right?" The name most commonly used is Durant.

Newspapers in search of worthwhile disclosures, and willing to render a valuable public service, should turn their star men on Delaware's black record of being the hanging ground of more bogus and unscrupulous stock-jobbing schemes than all the other states combined. Delaware appears to have no shame whatsoever in sharing money down from the pockets of scoundrels who rob the unwary.

It would inconvenience some firms and institutions, perhaps, but it would seem as if the time has come to forbid any individual, any firm, any institution, any corporation to sell stocks to the public without first obtaining a license to do so, and furnishing the authorities with sworn statements embodying all the inside facts covering each proposed issue, including the rake-off for the promoters.

A sum equal to more than half of the total amount of money received by America's farmers for our entire wheat crop is filched from public savings every year by swindling promoters, brokers and stock salesmen. Resort to the most drastic measures to check this evil is justified.

* * *

Is this bearish? The rest of living in New York City is less than 180 per cent. above the pre-war level, whereas the weekly earnings of factory workers in the State are fully 210 per cent. above the pre-war level.

Swiss francs, lire and marks were at fresh lows.

PRICES ARE MIXED IN GRAIN FUTURES

Prices were mixed for the week-end in the Chicago pit. Prices were: Wheat—July, 1.03¾ to 1.03⅝; September, 1.03⅜ to 1.04⅛; December, 1.06¼. Corn—July, 80 to 80½; September 74⅝ to 74⅞; December, 67 to 63¼. Oats—July 35½; September, 34⅝ to 35; December, 36⅞ to 37. Rye—July, 84⅝; December, 76¼.

QUOTATIONS OFF IN COTTON FUTURES

Week-end cotton futures in New York were heavy. Prices declined from 18 to 25 points, with the largest losses registered in the new crop months, due to favorable weather reports. July sold at 26.65, off 13 points; October at 25.85, off 25 points; December at 25.21, off 25 points; and January at 22.96, off 20 points.

Improved Tone Is Shown in New York With Small Gains Over Broad List

D. & H., RAIDED AGAIN, IS OFF OVER 2 POINTS

Weekend trading on the New York Stock Exchange displayed an improved tone with small gains extended over a broad list.

Delaware & Hudson, which went off 7 points Friday, was again raided by the bears and was down 2¾ at 93¼ before rallying. This was a new low since 1921.

The precipitate decline in Delaware & Hudson, amounting to more than 19 points since Monday, is probably due to the avoidance of fears for the safety of the full 9 per cent. dividend, which has been maintained at that rate since 1907.

In the first three months of 1923 earnings of Delaware & Hudson, both gross and net, were considerably below the corresponding period of 1922 as preparations for the coal strike were being made in the early months of the year and coal was being rushed to consumers.

Schulte Retail Stores set a new 1923 high, up 3¾ at 96½. Du Pont was up 2 at 154, General Electric added over 3 at 175¾. Chandler rose a point at 50. Associated Dry Goods at 80, up a point, 71½.

Famous Players rose over a point. Air Reduction added 3 points. There were solid gains in Norfolk & Western, American Woolen, "Nickel Plate" and Pan-American "B."

Business, broadly speaking, is still satisfactory. Some slight recession over the future exists everywhere but forward business is still sufficient to keep the factories manufacturing operations for some months to come.

The chief flaw in the ointment are the unmistakable downward tendency of commodity prices and doubt over the amount of goods in middleman's hands.

New Haven 7s and 3½s Slip Back Farther

Week-end trading in bonds was quiet and irregular. Except for gains of approximately one point each by Cuba 6s and Hudson 6s, changes in the foreign group were fractional. U. S. government bonds advanced fractionally.

New Haven 6s rallied 1¼ above Friday's close, but the 7s and convertible 3½s rallied little but extended their losses. Denver & Rio Grande refunding 5s and Atchison adjustment 4s stamped each advanced a point.

MORE HYDRANT SHOWERS FOR CHILDREN

Fire Commissioner Theodore A. Glynn has ordered installation of thirty-five more hydrant shower baths for children of the congested sections of the city.

Commr. Glynn

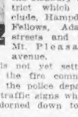
Five of the additional showers will be placed in the Roxbury district which includes Hamden, Fellows, Adams streets and the Mt. Pleasant avenue.

The question is not yet settled whether or not the fire commissioner will order the police department to remove traffic signs which have recently adorned down town fire alarm boxes.

Commissioner Glynn thinks it is a bad idea, inasmuch as it might have a tendency to misdirect a person who wishes to sound an alarm of fire, by making him think the fire alarm box is in the direction of the arrow.

EDUCATORS SCORE TWO GOVERNORS

San Francisco, July 7.—The National Education Association, the World Conference on Education and Allied Organizations, adopted at the final session the resolutions criticising the governors of California and Pennsylvania for their economy policies which made necessary the curtailment of educational activities in those States. One of the most outstanding accomplishments of the allied organizations was the creation of the World Federation of Education Associations. Its policy will be to prevent wars through means of education.



Augustus Thomas

Augustus O. Thomas, Augusta, Maine, was named president.

TELLS HOW BULLETS ENDANGERED LIFE

To The Boston American:

My attention has today been called to the news item, in your issue of Friday, July 6th, headed "Attempt to Kill Lawyer." As the facts of the case are so decidedly at variance with the report as published, it seems proper that I give you an epitome of the real story so that you may trace the source of your inaccurate information.

On July 4th, at about 5:45 p.m., two men, standing on the Fall River Bkan of the automobile Driver, about opposite my home in Somerset, with that apparent recklessness that so often leads to serious results, were evidently celebrating the Fourth by shooting into the Taunton River, using a high-powered rifle.

Seven or eight bullets were seen to strike the stream, and then three bullets were heard singing through the air along the Somerset shore; but no shots entered or struck my house. My daughter and two playmates were dallied into the house, as a matter of caution less a ricochetting bullet might be dangerous to them, playing on the wharf. Shortly afterwards a Mr. Charles W. Francis, who lives at least a quarter of a mile west from my house, reported that a steel bullet had penetrated the brass plate and door of his house.

As a Selectman of Somerset, I called the North Police Station in Fall River to ask for an immediate investigation, and sending of such foolhardy celebrating.

FERNALD L. ANSON.

DOUGHBOY STATUE TO COST $1,000,000

New York, July 7.—A huge war memorial, probably representing a doughboy, to cost $1,000,000, and as heroic in its proportions as the Statue of Liberty, is projected by a group of prominent citizens. Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney already has been selected as sculptress for the great statue, which will be erected on Castle Point, Hoboken, N. J. The site looks directly down on the piers from which hundreds of thousands American troops sailed, and commands a sweeping view of the Hudson.
